CHAPTER 1: THE CODE OF PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT

Objectives: After completing this chapter, you will be able to:

- List the six guiding principles in the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct.
- Explain the difference between the principles and the rules.
- Discuss how to apply the rules to specific actions common to the CPA community.

The Code of Professional Conduct provides guidelines for accounting practitioners in the conduct of their professional affairs. A member of the AICPA must observe all the Rules of Conduct unless an exception applies. The need to observe the Rules of Conduct also extends to individuals who carry out tasks on behalf of an AICPA member. A member may be held responsible for a violation of the rules committed by fellow partners, shareholders, or any other person associated with him who is engaged in the practice of public accounting. The bylaws of the AICPA provide the basis for determining whether a member has violated the Rules of Conduct. If a member is found guilty of a violation, he or she may be admonished, suspended or expelled.

A member of the AICPA also must be aware of Interpretations of the AICPA Rules of Conduct. After public exposure, Interpretations of the AICPA Rules of Conduct are published by the Executive Committee of the Professional Ethics Division. Interpretations are not intended to limit the scope or application of the Rules of Conduct. A member of the AICPA who departs from the guidelines provided in the Interpretations has the burden of justifying such departure.

Question: Why do I care about the AICPA rules if I am not a member of the AICPA?

Answer: Most states pattern their rules after the AICPA. In addition, when courts look at professional negligence, they will look to national standards such as the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct.

OBSERVATION: In performing an attest engagement, a member should consult the rules of his or her state board of accountancy, his or her state CPA society, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (PCAOB), and the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) if the member's report will be filed with the SEC, the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) if the member's report will be filed with the DOL, the AICPA SEC Practice Section (SECP) if the member's firm is a member of the SECPs, the Government Accountability Office (GAO) if law, regulation, agreement, policy or contract requires the member's report to be filed under GAO regulations, and any organization that issues or enforces standards of independence that would apply to the member's engagement. Such organizations may have independence requirements or rulings that differ from (e.g., may be more restrictive than) those of the AICPA.
The AICPA ethics pronouncements can be thought of as a pyramid.

A) Principles
The six principles of the Code of Professional Conduct provide the conceptual framework for the code. They are the cornerstone of ethical behavior.

B) Rules
The rules of the Code of Professional Conduct are more specific than the six principles. Members must observe the rules.

C) Interpretations
Interpretations are issued by the AICPA to better explain the Code of Professional Conduct. Only the principles and rules are considered part of the Code of Professional Conduct. Interpretations explain the code but are not part of it.

D) Rulings
The rulings apply the rules of conduct and interpretations to particular circumstances. AICPA members who depart from such rulings must justify their departures.

E) Your Behavior
The code, interpretations and rulings are meaningless if they do not impact your behavior. For this reason, your behavior is at the top of the pyramid.

PRINCIPLES

The Principles of the Code of Professional Conduct:

I. Responsibilities

In carrying out their responsibilities as professionals, members should exercise sensitive professional and moral judgments in all their activities.
II. The Public Interest

Members should accept the obligation to act in a way that will serve the public interest, honor the public trust, and demonstrate commitment to professionalism.

III. Integrity

To maintain and broaden public confidence, members should perform all professional responsibilities with the highest sense of integrity.

IV. Objectivity and Independence

A member should maintain objectivity and be free of conflicts of interest in discharging professional responsibilities. A member in public practice should be independent in fact and appearance when providing auditing and other attestation services.

V. Due Care

A member should observe the profession’s technical and ethical standards, strive continually to improve competence and the quality of services, and discharge professional responsibility to the best of the member’s ability.

VI. Scope and Nature of Services

A member in public practice should observe the Principles of the Code of Professional Conduct in determining the scope and nature of services to be provided.

These principles establish the basis for characterizing the responsibilities the CPA has to clients, colleagues and the public at large. The fundamental theme of the six principles is to be committed to honorable behavior, even at the sacrifice of personal advantage.

RULES

The following definitions are used in the Rules of the Code of Professional Conduct:

Practice of public accounting - The practice of accounting consists of the performance for a client, by a member or a member’s firm, while holding out as CPA(s), of the professional services of accounting, tax, personal financial planning, litigation support services, and those professional services for which standards are promulgated by bodies designated by Council.

However, a member or a member’s firm, while holding out as CPA(s), is not considered to be in the practice of public accounting if the member or the member’s firm does not perform, for any client, any of the professional services described in the preceding paragraph.

Professional services - Professional services include all services performed by a member while holding out as a CPA.
Below is a listing of the applicable rules followed by a discussion of each rule:

Rule 101 Independence
Rule 102 Integrity and Objectivity
Rule 201 General Standards
Rule 202 Compliance with Standards
Rule 203 Accounting Principles
Rule 301 Confidential Client Information
Rule 302 Contingent Fees
Rule 501 Acts Discreditable
Rule 502 Advertising and Other Forms of Solicitation
Rule 503 Commissions and Referral Fees
Rule 505 Form of Organization and Name

Rule 101 - Independence

A member in public practice shall be independent in the performance of professional services as required by the standards promulgated by bodies designated by Council.

Independence is a highly subjective term because it concerns an individual's ability to act with integrity and objectivity. Integrity relates to an auditor's honesty, while objectivity is the ability to be neutral during the conduct of the engagement and the preparation of the auditor's report. Two facets of independence are independence in fact and independence in appearance. The second general standard of generally accepted auditing standards requires that an auditor be independent in mental attitude in all matters relating to the engagement. In essence, the second standard embraces the concept of independence in fact. However, independence in fact is impossible to measure, since it is a mental attitude; the Code of Professional Conduct takes a more pragmatic approach to the concept of independence.

Rule 101 is applicable to all professional services provided by a CPA that require independence.

OBSERVATION: A CPA may conduct a compilation engagement when he or she is not independent, but the compilation report must be modified to disclose the lack of independence.

Rule 102 - Integrity and Objectivity

In the performance of any professional service, a member shall maintain objectivity and integrity, shall be free of conflicts of interest, and shall not knowingly misrepresent facts or subordinate his or her judgment to others.
Rule 102 is very broad on purpose. The Code of Professional Conduct could not possibly proscribe every action that is to be avoided. Thus, Rule 102 could cover a variety of misconduct.

Rule 201 - General Standards

A member shall comply with the following standards and with any interpretations thereof by bodies designated by Council.

A. Professional Competence. Undertake only those professional services that the member or the member’s firm can reasonably expect to be completed with professional competence.

B. Due Professional Care. Exercise due professional care in the performance of professional services.

C. Planning and Supervision. Adequately plan and supervise the performance of professional services.

D. Sufficient Relevant Data. Obtain sufficient relevant data to afford a reasonable basis for conclusions or recommendations in relation to any professional services performed.

In general, these standards are applicable to all professional services rendered by an accounting firm. For example, an accountant who performs a consulting services engagement must properly plan and supervise the job (ET 201.01).

Rule 201 requires that a firm have a certain level of expertise before an audit, tax, or consulting engagement is accepted. This does not suggest that an accounting firm must have complete knowledge in an area before the engagement is accepted -- a lack of competence is not apparent just because an accounting firm accepts a client knowing that additional research may be necessary to complete the job.

Rule 202 - Compliance with Standards

A member who performs auditing, review, compilation, management consulting, tax, or other professional services shall comply with standards promulgated by bodies designated by Council.

Rule 202 requires members to observe technical standards promulgated by bodies designated by the AICPA Council. To date, the bodies designated by the Council are the Auditing Standards Board (ASB), Accounting and Review Services Committee (ARSC), Management Consulting Services Executive Committee (MCSEC), and Tax Executive Committee.

Observation: The Code of Professional Conduct does not refer to Audit and Accounting Guides that may be issued by a committee or task force established by the AICPA. Although each Audit Guide contains a preamble that states that a Guide does not have the authority of a pronouncement by the ASB, it does note that a member may be called upon to justify departures from the Guide if the member’s work is challenged.
Rule 203 - Accounting Principles

A member shall not (1) express an opinion or state affirmatively that the financial statements or other financial data of any entity are presented in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles or (2) state that he or she is not aware of any material modifications that should be made to such statements or data in order for them to be in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles, if such statements or data contain any departure from an accounting principle promulgated by bodies designated by Council to establish such principles that have a material effect on the statements or data taken as a whole. If, however, the statements or data contain such a departure and the member can demonstrate that due to unusual circumstances, the financial statements or data would otherwise have been misleading, the member can comply with the rule by describing the departure, its approximate effects, if practicable, and the reasons why compliance with the principle would result in a misleading statement.

OBSERVATION: The AICPA Council has designated the FASB, GASB, IASB, and FASAB as bodies to promulgate accounting principles. In addition, several AICPA committees have been designated to promulgate standards in their respective subject areas.

Rule 203 also provides flexibility in the application of accounting principles.

When the auditor concludes that a written accounting rule should not be followed, the auditor’s standard report must be expanded to include an explanatory paragraph. The explanatory paragraph would describe the nature of the departure; however, the opinion expressed would be an unqualified opinion and no reference to the explanatory paragraph would be made in the opinion paragraph.

Rule 301 - Confidential Client Information

A member in public practice shall not disclose any confidential client information without the specific consent of the client.

This rule shall not be construed (1) to relieve a member of his or her professional obligations under Rules 202 and 203, (2) to affect in any way the member’s obligation to comply with a validly issued and enforceable subpoena or summons, or to prohibit a member’s compliance with the applicable laws and government regulations, (3) to prohibit review of a member’s professional practice under AICPA or state CPA society or Board of Accountancy authorization, or (4) to preclude a member from initiating a complaint with, or responding to any inquiry made by, the professional ethics division or trial board of the Institute or a duly constituted investigative or disciplinary body of a state CPA society or Board of Accountancy.

Members of any of the bodies identified in (4) above and members involved with professional practice reviews identified in (3) above shall not use to their own advantage or disclose any member’s confidential client information that comes to their attention in carrying out those activities. This prohibition shall not restrict members’ exchange of information in connection with the investigative or disciplinary proceedings described in (4) above or the professional practice reviews described in (3) above.
NOTE: An auditor should have access to a variety of information held by the client if the engagement is to be successful. The client will grant the auditor access to sensitive files and reports only if it can expect the auditor to hold the information in confidence. The purpose of Rule 301 is to encourage a free flow of information from the client to the CPA; however, the rule makes it clear that the principle of confidentiality is not absolute. The confidentiality concept does not allow the client to omit information that is required by generally accepted accounting principles. SAS-32 (Adequacy of Disclosure in Financial Statements) reinforces this position by stating that if a client omits information that is required by GAAP, a qualified or adverse opinion must be expressed. On the other hand, SAS-32 does note that an auditor ordinarily should not make available information that is not required to be disclosed to comply with GAAP.

Rule 301 recognizes the confidentiality of client information, but makes it clear that the information does not constitute privileged communication. In most states, and most federal courts, the CPA can be forced to testify in a case involving the client. Thus, the rule recognizes that an auditor must respond to a subpoena or summons.

In recent years, the concept of peer review has been accepted by the profession. Rule 301 allows a peer or quality review of a CPA's professional practice as part of an AICPA or state society of CPAs program.

Finally, Rule 301 states that it is not a violation of confidentiality when a member initiates a complaint with or responds to inquiries from a recognized investigative or disciplinary body such as the AICPA's Professional Ethics Division or Trial Board.

The theft of laptop computers and the sensitive data they contain is a growing problem for CPAs – in one week, three CPAs contacted the Board regarding the theft of laptops from their firms.

There are three major aspects to laptop security – physical security, data protection, and tracking/recovery.

One of the first things to do after purchasing a laptop is to make a copy of the purchase receipt, serial number, and description of the laptop and keep that information in a location separate from the laptop. This information will be invaluable if the laptop is lost or stolen.

In addition, asset tag or engrave the laptop. Engraving your firm name and phone number or address may increase the likelihood of getting the laptop returned if it is stolen and recovered. Tamper-proof asset tags may serve as a deterrent to a thief who must choose between stealing an unmarked laptop or a marked laptop. Why? Asset tags are difficult to remove and may hamper the thief’s ability to sell the laptop on the open market.

Industry experts estimate that one in eight laptops is at risk of theft. With such a daunting statistic, laptop users may feel resigned to being the victim of theft. However, one of the cheapest and most cost-effective solutions to deter the theft of a laptop is to attach a security cable (similar to the locks used on bicycles) to the laptop.
With cable locks, a steel clip provided by the manufacturer is installed in a security slot on the back or side of the laptop and a steel cable is threaded through the clip and wrapped around a heavy object such as a desk leg or support pole. The two ends of the cable are then secured with a locking device. If the laptop does not contain a security slot or if the desk does not provide a location for suitable anchorage, special adhesive pads containing an anchorage slot are available. Although cable locks are not infallible, they will at least make the thief work a little harder to get the laptop.

Another effective method of protecting a laptop is to use a laptop safe. An advantage of a laptop safe is that when the laptop is locked in a safe, the PC cards and peripherals are secure, a protection that is not available with cable locks.

The two main types of safes available are portable safes that can safely attach to most work surfaces and car safes which are designed to protect valuables while they are stored in the trunk of a vehicle. (NOTE: Never leave a laptop in plain sight in a vehicle; doing so is inviting a thief to break in the vehicle and take the laptop.)

Whereas cable locks and safes are designed to stop (or at least slow down) an opportunistic thief, alarms and motion detectors are intended to make the potential robber so conspicuous that he or she aborts the crime.

Products range from simple motion detectors to sensors that detect the unplugging of cables. Some products are designed to lock down the laptop if it is moved out of a designated range. Other products rely on nothing more than movement of the object to which it is attached; if the laptop to which the sensor is attached is moved, an alarm will sound.

Let’s assume that, despite taking the appropriate physical security measures, your laptop has been stolen. How worried would you be about the security of the data on the machine?

Safeguarding data when it is in unauthorized hands is a matter of controlling access and encrypting data. If the first thing a thief sees when turning on a laptop is, “please enter boot password,” he or she knows that it will take some effort to access the information on the machine.

Many machines allow the owner to set a boot password and a user will be prompted three times to enter the correct password. If there are three password failures, the machine will refuse to boot. However, if the machine is restarted, the user will have three more chances to enter the right password.

Removing a password-protected BIOS (basic input output system) and boot sequence typically involves physically opening the computer and removing the CMOS (complementary metal oxide semiconductor) battery (which may clear the BIOS information) or shorting some jumpers to reset the BIOS to a default state.

If you are running an operating system that supports proper logins (Windows NT/2000/XP or Linux), setting a password is not only a good idea, it is required. To successfully log in to the computer, the user must provide a login name and password. If the information entered is incorrect, the operating system will refuse to allow the user to become an active user.
When creating a password, make sure you create a strong password. For a password to be considered strong, it must be eight or more characters (14 characters or longer is ideal); it must combine letters, numbers, and symbols; it must use a mix of uppercase letters and lowercase letters; and it should use words and phrases that are easy for you to remember, but difficult for others to guess. (NOTE: Avoid using your login name, your name, your birthday, anniversary, social security number, telephone number, etc., as part of your password.) Don’t forget to change your passwords on a regular basis.

Although applying strong passwords to your laptop will make it more difficult for a casual thief to log in as “you,” and therefore gain access to the information on your machine, passwords should not be relied upon as the sole piece of security on a laptop.

Even if an unauthorized user gains access to your laptop, encryption will protect the information stored on your machine. When you encrypt a file or folder, you are converting it to a format that can’t be read by another user. When a file or folder is encrypted, an encryption key is added to the files or folder that you selected to encrypt and the key is needed to read the file.

Although Microsoft provides a form of encryption through Windows Encrypted File Service (EFS), that encryption is keyed to your user login. If the intruder is able to login as “you,” he or she has access to your data even if it is encrypted with EFS.

Therefore, most firms who go this route will seek a third-party product which relies on encryption techniques above and beyond the Windows operating system.

CPAs using encryption technology need assurances that application databases such as tax, audit automation, and time and billing will operate correctly from encrypted disks or folders. The major software vendors test their products under a variety of scenarios and will be able to advise their customers of encryption solutions which are fully compatible with their products.

While encryption will protect the sensitive information on your laptop, it does nothing to retrieve the data on a lost or stolen machine. To do that, you must back up your files and store them in a secure location. Ideally, files should be backed up on a network server, but if that is not possible, there are other options.

External drives, flash drives, zip drives, and CDs are excellent choices for backing up your files. You can even use your digital music player to back up your data; these players don’t just copy music files, they can copy any data. Players are easily hooked up to a laptop through the USB port and have up to 20-gigabyte hard drives.

While encryption strategies will help safeguard the data on a lost or stolen notebook computer, they do nothing to help recover the missing machine – the FBI estimates that just 3% of stolen or lost laptops are recovered.

Until recently, luck was the determining factor in recovering a lost or stolen machine, but new technology is providing users with the ability to track stolen or lost laptops.
With tracking programs, once a computer is reported lost or stolen, the tracking company will wait for the laptop to send a location signal (sent whenever the machine is connected to the Internet). When a signal is retrieved, the program will be instructed to broadcast as much information as it can about the current connection (originating phone number, IP address, service provider, etc.). When enough information has been collected, the tracking company will notify the appropriate law enforcement agency which may be able to recover the machine.

Other programs provide the user with the ability to execute commands remotely to the missing machine (if connected to the Internet), theoretically allowing the user to delete all of the important information on the hard drive.

If you haven’t yet experienced the loss of a computer full of sensitive and confidential data, you are living on borrowed time. Plan ahead now to minimize the risk, reduce your exposure, and enhance your chances of recovery. Manage your risks through proactive strategies. Develop a security policy and implement it.

This is not an issue you can address once and have solved forever. Threats will change, risks will change, and requirements will change. Be sure your plans, your people, and your processes change along with them. Conduct periodic training updates, ensure software is kept up to date with the latest versions, and keep your emergency reaction checklists current.
Practice Pointer:
The Ethics of Outsourcing Client Tax Returns

Business process outsourcing – contracting business processes to outside service vendors – is not a new concept, and the accounting industry has long taken advantage of the benefits of outsourcing. However, a growing trend among CPA firms is causing concern among regulators.

A number of CPA firms, both multi-state and local, have begun using the burgeoning outsourcing and technology markets in India to process client tax returns. Although the AICPA Code and Rules do not expressly prohibit the practice of outsourcing the preparation of client tax returns, there are several rules a CPA must consider when outsourcing services.

One prime concern is maintaining the confidentiality of client records. Pursuant to Rule 301, a CPA shall not disclose any confidential information except with the consent of the client.

To process the tax return, the preparer must have sensitive client information such as the client’s Social Security Number, date of birth, bank and brokerage statements, credit card information, salary, etc. In short, much of the information can be used to perpetrate identity theft.

If your CPA firm has professional liability insurance coverage, you should check with your insurance carrier to see if your policy covers the firm when using an outsource center.

The accuracy of the tax return remains the ultimate responsibility of the CPA firm, and all returns prepared by an outsource center must be reviewed by the CPA firm and the signing CPA.

If your CPA firm is considering outsourcing the preparation of client tax returns, remember that a CPA is responsible for ensuring that any partner, shareholder, officer, director, unlicensed principal, proprietor, employee or agent, including outsource personnel, comply with the AICPAs rules on Professional Ethics and Conduct. In 2004, the AICPA adopted revised ethics rulings to address these concerns.

In addition, the IRS and most states impose criminal and civil penalties for the unauthorized disclosure of tax return data.
Rule 302 - Contingent Fees

A member in public practice shall not:

1. Perform for a contingent fee any professional services for, or receive such a fee from, a client for whom the member or the member’s firm performs:

   a) an audit or review of a financial statement; or
   b) a compilation of a financial statement when the member expects, or reasonably might expect, that a third party will use the financial statement and the member’s compilation report does not disclose a lack of independence; or
   c) an examination of prospective financial information; or

2. Prepare an original or amended tax return or claim for a tax refund for a contingent fee for any client.

The prohibition in (1) above applies during the period in which the member or the member’s firm is engaged to perform any of the services listed above and the period covered by any historical financial statements involved in any such listed services.

Except as stated in the next sentence, a contingent fee is a fee established for the performance of any service pursuant to an arrangement in which no fee will be charged unless a specified finding or result is attained, or in which the amount of the fee is otherwise dependent upon the finding or result of such service. Solely for the purposes of this rule, fees are not regarded as being contingent if fixed by courts or other public authorities, or, in tax matters, if determined based on the results of judicial proceedings or the findings of governmental agencies.

A member’s fees may vary depending on the complexity of services rendered.

NOTE: For example, charging a new client $500 for completing a tax return when a similar continuing client is charged only $300 for a similar tax return is permitted, since a first year engagement is more difficult than a repeat engagement.

The accounting profession has had a long-standing tradition that a contingent fee would infringe on the CPA’s ability to be independent. A contingent fee is based on an arrangement whereby the client is not required to pay the CPA unless a specified finding or result is attained. For example, a contingent fee arrangement would exist if the auditor’s fee is dependent on the net proceeds of a public stock offering. Engagement fees should be determined by such factors as the number of hours required to perform the engagement, the type of personnel needed for the engagement, and the complexity of the engagement.

Fees are not considered to be contingent if they are determined (1) by courts or other public authorities or (2) by judicial proceedings or governmental agencies in the case of tax matters.
Before 1991, Rule 302 prohibited contingent fees for all professional engagements (with the exception of certain fees fixed by the judicial or quasi-judicial process). In 1985, The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) challenged the position of the profession concerning contingent fees on the basis of restraint of trade. After prolonged negotiations between the AICPA and the FTC, Rule 301 (as reproduced above) was issued to modify the prior prohibition against contingent fees.

Rule 302 prohibits contingent fees for all additional professional services when the CPA has performed an attestation engagement, which includes audits, reviews, and examinations of prospective financial information. Also, the CPA may not perform any services for a client on a contingent fee basis when the CPA has performed a compilation engagement if the compilation report is expected to be used by a third party and does not disclose that the CPA is not independent with respect to the client.

The period of prohibition includes the date covered by the financial statements and the period during which the attestation service (and compilation service, as described above) is performed. For example, if the CPA is auditing a client’s financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2001, and the date of the auditor’s report is March 12, 2002, no services could be performed on a contingent fee basis by the auditor for the period from January 1, 2001, through March 12, 2002.

Rule 302 also prohibits the CPA from charging a contingent fee to prepare an original or amended tax return or claim for a refund. While independence is not an issue in performing tax services, the AICPA takes the position that it would be unprofessional to charge a fee, for example, based on the amount of refund that may be claimed on the tax return.

Rule 501 - Acts Discreditable

A member shall not commit an act discreditable to the profession.

NOTE: Rule 501 is very broad. It is basic to ethical conduct, and only through its observance can the profession expect to win the confidence of the public. What constitutes a discreditable act is highly judgmental. There has been no attempt to be specific about what constitutes a discreditable act; however, the AICPA bylaws (Section 7.3) state that the following actions will lead to membership suspension or termination, without the need for a disciplinary hearing:

- If a member commits a crime punishable by imprisonment for more than one year.
- If a member willfully fails to file an income tax return that he or she, as an individual taxpayer, is required by law to file.
- If a member files a false or fraudulent income tax return on his or her behalf, or on a client’s behalf.
- If a member willfully aids in the preparation and presentation of a false and fraudulent income tax return of a client.
- If a member’s certificate as a certified public accountant, or license or permit to practice as such, is revoked by a governmental authority as a disciplinary measure.
Rule 502 - Advertising and Other Forms of Solicitation

A member in public practice shall not seek to obtain clients by advertising or other forms of solicitation in a manner that is false, misleading, or deceptive. Solicitation by the use of coercion, overreaching, or harassing conduct is prohibited.

OBSERVATION: Members who are not in public practice are exempt from much of Rule 502.

A. Prohibited Commissions

A member in public practice shall not for a commission recommend or refer to a client any product or service, or for a commission recommend or refer any product or service to be supplied by a client, or receive a commission, when the member or the member’s firm also performs for that client:

a) an audit or review of a financial statement; or
b) a compilation of a financial statement when the member expects, or reasonably might expect, that a third party will use the financial statement and the member’s compilation report does not disclose a lack of independence; or

c) an examination of prospective financial information.

This prohibition applies during the period in which the member is engaged to perform any of the services listed above and the period covered by any historical financial statements involved in such listed services.

B. Disclosure of Permitted Commissions

A member in public practice who is not prohibited by this rule from performing services for or receiving a commission and who is paid or expects to be paid a commission shall disclose that fact to any person or entity to whom the member recommends or refers a product or service to which the commission relates.

C. Referral Fees

Any member who accepts a referral fee for recommending or referring any service of a CPA to any person or entity or who pays a referral fee to obtain a client shall disclose such acceptance or payment to the client.

NOTE: A CPA cannot receive a commission for recommending a client’s product or services if the CPA audits or reviews that client’s financial statements or examines that client’s prospective financial information. In addition, no commissions can be received when the CPA compiles a client’s financial statements if the CPA believes that a third party will rely on the statements, unless any lack of independence is disclosed in the compilation report.
OBSERVATION: When a CPA sells products that the CPA has title to directly to clients, this is not considered a commission. However, care should be exercised to ensure that the arrangement does not violate Rule 101 (Independence).

OBSERVATION: As with contingent fees, the most important point for CPAs in public practice to remember is that the Boards of Accountancy may continue to prohibit commissions. Change is coming. However, the practitioner should not violate the law in anticipation of change.

OBSERVATION: The rule has never prohibited calculating the price to be paid for the purchase of an accounting practice as a percentage of fees the purchaser receives from these new clients over some specified period of time such as one, two, three or more years. The AICPA Ethics Executive Committee has stated that the rule does not prohibit the purchase of a portion of a practice (such as the tax practice related to individual returns) or even the purchase of a single client. Further, the purchase may be made through a non-CPA broker who will receive a portion of the purchase price.

The rule also does not prohibit the payment of bonuses to employees even though practice development efforts on the part of the employee are a factor in determining the amount of the bonus.

Rule 504 - Incompatible Occupations (Withdrawn)

The concept of incompatible occupations now is covered by Rule 101 (Independence).

Rule 505 - Form of Organization and Name

A member may practice public accounting only in a form of organization permitted by law or regulation whose characteristics conform to resolutions of Council.

A member shall not practice public accounting under a firm name that is misleading. Names of one or more past owners may be included in the firm name of a successor organization.

NOTE: Also, an owner surviving the death or withdrawal of all other owners may continue to practice under a name which includes the name of past owners for up to two years after becoming a sole practitioner.

A firm may not designate itself as “Members of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants” unless all of its CPA owners are members of the Institute.

NOTE: Over the past several decades, the character of the practice of accounting has broadened to include a variety of activities that are beyond the scope of accounting. These activities include, among others, environmental auditing, executive recruitment, and the design of sophisticated computer systems that are not part of the client’s accounting system. With the expansion of the types of services provided by accounting firms, there is an obvious need to recruit personnel who do not have an accounting/auditing background. For many accounting firms, these nontraditional professionals are increasingly important to their growth and development. However, because of the rules adopted by the AICPA, a nontraditional professional, no matter how competent or important to the firm, could not be an owner of the firm. These rules changed about ten years ago, and the updated rules follow.
Non CPA Ownership of CPA Firms

The AICPA allows a CPA firm to be owned by non-CPAs if the form of ownership is sanctioned by the particular state and if the following guidelines are observed:

- Fifty-one percent of the ownership (as measured by financial interest and voting rights) must be held by CPAs.
- A non-CPA owner must be actively engaged in providing services to clients of the firm.
- A CPA must be ultimately responsible for all services provided by the firm that involve financial statement attestation, compilation services, and “other engagements governed by Statements on Auditing Standards or Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services.”
- A non-CPA may not hold him or herself out as a CPA, but may be referred to as a(n) principal, owner, officer, member, shareholder or other title allowed by state law.

While the resolution allows for accounting firm ownership by non-CPAs, those individuals are not eligible for membership in the AICPA.

OBSERVATION: Each state is responsible for determining what forms of ownership may be used to practice public accounting; however, the AICPA notes that a practitioner can practice only in a business organization form that conforms to resolutions of the AICPA Council.
CHAPTER 1 – REVIEW QUESTIONS

The following questions are designed to ensure that you have a complete understanding of the information presented in the chapter. They do not need to be submitted in order to receive CPE credit. They are included as an additional tool to enhance your learning experience.

We recommend that you answer each review question and then compare your response to the suggested solution before answering the final exam questions related to this chapter.

1. Why does this ethics course examine the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct when membership in the AICPA is voluntary:

   a) although membership in the AICPA is voluntary, federal law requires that all CPAs adhere to the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct
   b) most state boards of accountancy pattern their laws and regulations after the AICPA Code or refer to it
   c) membership in the AICPA is not voluntary; membership is required for all CPAs and firms doing attest work
   d) most state CPA societies pattern their code of conduct after the AICPA Code, and most states require their licensees belong to their state CPA Society

2. The fundamental theme of the six principles of the Code of Professional Conduct is:

   a) to be committed to honorable behavior
   b) to sacrifice personal advantage
   c) to be committed to honorable behavior, even at the sacrifice of personal advantage
   d) to make the most money possible in the shortest possible time without violating any laws or standards of decency

3. Which of the following is true regarding Rule 102 – Integrity and Objectivity:

   a) Rule 102 is very broad on purpose
   b) Rule 102 provides a “safe harbor” against allegations of possible violations provided a CPA is following the orders of one’s boss or another superior
   c) Rule 102 provides a very long list of prohibited actions, but the list does not include every possible instance of possible violations
   d) Rule 102 only applies to CPAs doing attest engagements
4. AICPA Rule 201 requires that a CPA be competent. Nash, CPA seeks to provide services to a new client in an industry that he has not previously served. Which of the following is true regarding Nash, CPA providing services to this client:

a) Rule 201 requires that Nash, CPA have sufficient professional competence prior to accepting any engagement
b) Rule 201 would not apply in this case since Nash is a CPA. Rule 201 only applies to non-CPA subordinates
c) Rule 201 allows Nash, CPA to accept the engagement as long as it can be completed competently
d) Rule 201 would require Nash, CPA to engage the services of an expert in that industry prior to accepting the engagement but would not require that Nash, CPA be competent in that area
CHAPTER 1 – SOLUTIONS AND SUGGESTED RESPONSES

1. A: Incorrect. Membership in the AICPA is voluntary. Federal law does not explicitly state that CPAs must follow the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct.

   B: Correct. Most state boards of accountancy pattern their regulations on the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct and then address specific instances where their regulations differ.

   C: Incorrect. Membership in the AICPA and state CPA societies is voluntary.

   D: Incorrect. Most state CPA societies pattern their code of conduct after the AICPA Code, but state CPA society membership is voluntary.

   (See page 1-1 in the course material.)

2. A: Incorrect. Being committed to honorable behavior is only a part of the fundamental theme.

   B: Incorrect. Personal sacrifice is only a part of the fundamental theme.

   C: Correct. Both honorable behavior and personal sacrifice together comprise the fundamental theme.

   D: Incorrect. Making money is not part of the fundamental theme.

   (See the discussion of the Six Principles in the course material.)

3. A: Correct. The AICPA Code of Professional Conduct could not possibly list every possible violation.

   B: Incorrect. Rule 102 specifies that a CPA must not subordinate his or her judgment to others. There is no “safe harbor.”

   C: Incorrect. The AICPA Code of Professional Conduct could not possibly list every possible violation and therefore does not even begin to list possible violations.

   D: Incorrect. Rule 102 applies to all CPAs. CPAs in industry must not subordinate their judgment to others.

   (See Rule 102 in the course material.)
4. A: Incorrect. A CPA should undertake only those engagements that the firm reasonably expects can be completed competently. Nash, CPA may accept this engagement if he believes he can attain competence prior to completing the engagement. Competence can be attained through training, consulting with colleagues, or other methods deemed appropriate.

B: Incorrect. Rule 201 clearly applies to all CPAs.

C: Correct. Nash, CPA may accept this engagement if he believes he can attain competence prior to completing the engagement. Competence can be attained through training, consulting with colleagues, or other methods deemed appropriate.

D: Incorrect. Nash, CPA may accept this engagement if he believes he can attain competence prior to completing the engagement. Competence can be attained through training, consulting with colleagues, or other methods deemed appropriate. Nash, CPA is ultimately responsible to ensure that competence is attained.

(See Rule 201 in the course material.)
CHAPTER 2: UNDERSTANDING THE CODE OF PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT

Objectives: After completing this chapter, you will be able to:

• Discuss how rule interpretations apply to the rules themselves.
• Discuss the interpretations as they apply to your practice as a CPA.
• Discuss how you would apply the interpretations in a variety of specific circumstances.
• Describe the difference between principles, rules, and interpretations.

Introduction

The previous chapter outlined the Code of Professional Conduct as set forth by the AICPA. This chapter will assist in applying these Codes to the accounting profession. The Interpretations detailed in this chapter are issued by the AICPA to better explain the Code of Professional Conduct. This material should help illustrate how the codes relate to professional responsibility. The term “covered member” is used throughout the Interpretations. Since all states require a CPA to follow AICPA regulations (or state regulations that are similar), covered member in essence refers to all CPAs, as well as non-CPA owners of CPA firms.

Independence, Integrity, Objectivity

• Independence encompasses an impartiality that recognizes an obligation for fairness not only to management and owners of a business but also to those who may otherwise use the CPA’s report. The CPA must be free from any obligation to or interest in the client, its management, or its owners.

• Integrity requires the CPA to be honest and candid within the constraints of client confidentiality. Service and the public trust should not be subordinated to personal gain and advantage. A CPA has a dual responsibility – to the public and to the client.

• Objectivity is a state of mind and a quality that lends value to a CPA’s services. The principle of objectivity imposes the obligation to be impartial, intellectually honest, and free of conflicts of interest.

AICPA Interpretations of Rules 101 and 102

RULE 101 - INDEPENDENCE

Interpretation 101-1 (Interpretation of Rule 101) Whereas Rule 101 establishes the broad principle that a CPA must be independent (independence in fact), this Interpretation provides more specific guidelines concerning the types of relationships that a CPA should avoid. Independence is considered to be impaired if:

A. During the period of a professional engagement a covered member:
1. Had or was committed to acquire any direct or material indirect financial interest in the client.

2. Was a trustee of any trust or executor or administrator of any estate if such trust or estate had or was committed to acquire any direct or material indirect financial interest in the client, and

i) The covered member (individually or with others) had the authority to make investment decisions for the trust or estate; or

ii) The trust or estate owned or was committed to acquire more than 10 percent of the client's outstanding equity securities or other ownership interests; or

iii) The value of the trust's or estate's holdings in the client exceeded 10 percent of the total assets of the trust or estate.

3. Had a joint closely held investment that was material to the covered member.

4. Except as specifically permitted in Interpretation 101-5, had any loan to or from the client, or any officer or director of the client, or any individual owning 10 percent or more of the client's outstanding equity securities or other ownership interests.

B. During the period of the professional engagement, a partner or professional employee of the firm, his or her immediate family, or any group of such persons acting together owned more than five percent of a client's outstanding equity securities or other ownership interests.

C. During the period covered by the financial statements or during the period of the professional engagement, a partner or professional employee of the firm was simultaneously associated with the client as a(n):

1. Director, officer, or employee, or in any capacity equivalent to that of a member of management;
2. Promoter, underwriter, or voting trustee; or
3. Trustee for any pension or profit-sharing trust of the client.

Application of the Independence Rules to Covered Members Formerly Employed by a Client or Otherwise Associated With a Client

An individual who was formerly (i) employed by a client or (ii) associated with a client as an officer, director, promoter, underwriter, voting trustee, or trustee for a pension or profit-sharing trust of the client would impair his or her firm's independence if the individual:

1. Participated on the attest engagement team or was an individual in a position to influence the attest engagement for the client when the attest engagement covers any period that includes his or her former employment or association with that client; or
2. Was otherwise a covered member with respect to the client unless the individual first dissociates from the client by:

   a. Terminating any relationships with the client described in Interpretation 101-1C;
   b. Disposing of any direct or material indirect financial interest in the client;
   c. Collecting or repaying any loans to or from the client, except for loans specifically permitted or grandfathered under Interpretation 101-5;
   d. Ceasing to participate\(^1\) in all employee benefit plans sponsored by the client, unless the client is legally required to allow the individual to participate in the plan (for example, COBRA) and the individual pays 100 percent of the cost of participation on a current basis; and
   e. Liquidating or transferring all vested benefits in the client’s defined benefit plans, defined contribution plans, deferred compensation plans, and other similar arrangements at the earliest date permitted under the plan. However, liquidation or transfer is not required if a penalty\(^2\) significant to the benefits is imposed upon liquidation or transfer.

Application of the Independence Rules to a Covered Member’s Immediate Family

Except as stated in the following paragraph, a covered member’s immediate family is subject to Rule 101 and its interpretations and rulings.

The exceptions are that independence would not be considered to be impaired solely as a result of the following:

1. An individual in a covered member’s immediate family was employed by the client in a position other than a key position;
2. In connection with his or her employment, an individual in the immediate family of one of the following covered members participated in a retirement, savings, compensation, or similar plan that is a client, is sponsored by a client, or that invests in a client (provided such plan is normally offered to all employees in similar positions):
   a. A partner or manager who provides ten or more hours of non-attest services to the client; or
   b. Any partner in the office in which the lead attest engagement partner primarily practices in connection with the attest engagement.

For purposes of determining materiality under Rule 101, the financial interests of the covered member and his or her immediate family should be aggregated.

OBSERVATION: At this point, you may believe the independence rules are very complex. You may wish to skim the independence rules, paying particular attention to the observations presented throughout the chapter.

\(^1\) See Ethics Ruling No. 107, “Participation in Health and Welfare Plan of Client,” for instances in which participation was the result of permitted employment of the individual’s spouse or spousal equivalent.

\(^2\) A penalty includes an early withdrawal penalty levied under the tax law but excludes other income taxes that would be owed or market losses that may be incurred as a result of the liquidation or transfer.
Application of the Independence Rules to Close Relatives

Independence would be considered to be impaired if:

1. An individual participating on the attest engagement team has a close relative who had:
   a. A key position with the client, or
   b. A financial interest in the client that:
      i. Was material to the close relative and of which the individual has knowledge; or
      ii. Enabled the close relative to exercise significant influence over the client.

2. An individual in a position to influence the attest engagement or any partner in the office in which the lead attest engagement partner primarily practices in connection with the attest engagement has a close relative who had:
   a. A key position with the client, or
   b. A financial interest in the client that i. Was material to the close relative and of which the individual or partner has knowledge; and
      ii. Enabled the close relative to exercise significant influence over the client.

Q: A potential audit client is owned by the CPA’s stepbrother. Would the CPA be independent with regard to the potential client? What if the CPA is closer to the stepbrother than to his own brother?

A: A stepbrother is not considered a close relative under the independence rules and normally would not impair independence. However, if the relationship between the CPA and stepbrother was close enough to lead a reasonable person, aware of all the facts, to conclude that the situation poses an unacceptable threat to the appearance of independence and the CPA’s objectivity, then the relationship would impair independence.

Grandfathered Employment Relationships

Employment relationships of a covered member’s immediate family and close relatives with an existing attest client that impair independence under the interpretation and that existed as of November 2001, will not be deemed to impair independence provided such relationships were permitted under preexisting requirements of Rule 101 and its interpretations and rulings.

Other Considerations

It is impossible to enumerate all circumstances in which the appearance of independence might be questioned. In the absence of an independence interpretation or ruling under Rule 101 that addresses a particular circumstance, a member should evaluate whether that circumstance would lead a reasonable person aware of all the relevant facts to conclude that there is an unacceptable threat to the member’s and the firm’s independence. When making that evaluation, members should refer to the risk-based approach described in the Conceptual Framework for AICPA Independence Standards. If the threats to independence are not at an acceptable level, safeguards should be applied to eliminate the threats or reduce them to an acceptable level. In cases where threats to independence are not at an acceptable level, thereby requiring the application of safeguards, the threats identified and the safeguards applied to eliminate the threats or reduce them to an acceptable level should be documented.3

Interpretation 101-6 (The Effect of Actual or Threatened Litigation on Independence) In some circumstances, independence may be considered to be impaired as a result of litigation or the expressed intention to commence litigation as discussed below.

Litigation Between Client and Member

The relationship between the management of the client and a covered member must be characterized by complete candor and full disclosure regarding all aspects of the client’s business operations. In addition, there must be an absence of bias on the part of the covered member so that he or she can exercise professional judgment on the financial reporting decisions made by the management. When the present management of a client company commences, or expresses an intention to commence, legal action against a covered member, the covered member and the client’s management may be placed in adversarial positions in which the management’s willingness to make complete disclosures and the covered member’s objectivity may be affected by self-interest.

For the reasons outlined above, independence may be impaired whenever the covered member and the covered member’s client or its management are in threatened or actual positions of material adverse interests by reason of threatened or actual litigation. Because of the complexity and diversity of the situations of adverse interests which may arise, however, it is difficult to prescribe precise points at which independence may be impaired. The following criteria are offered as guidelines:

1. The commencement of litigation by the present management alleging deficiencies in audit work for the client would be considered to impair independence.
2. The commencement of litigation by the covered member against the present management alleging management fraud or deceit would be considered to impair independence.
3. An expressed intention by the present management to commence litigation against the covered member alleging deficiencies in audit work for the client would be considered to impair independence if the auditor concludes that it is probable that such a claim will be filed.

3 A failure to prepare the required documentation would be considered a violation of Rule 202, Compliance With Standards, of the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct. Independence would not be considered to be impaired provided the member can demonstrate that he or she did apply safeguards to eliminate unacceptable threats or reduce them to an acceptable level. [Footnote added, effective April 30, 2006, by the Professional Ethics Executive Committee.]
4. Litigation not related to performance of an attest engagement for the client (whether threatened or actual) for an amount not material to the covered member’s firm\(^4\) or to the client company\(^5\) would not generally be considered to affect the relationship in such a way as to impair independence. Such claims may arise, for example, out of disputes as to billings for services, results of tax or management services advice or similar matters.

Litigation by Security Holders

A covered member may also become involved in litigation (“primary litigation”) in which the covered member and the client or its management are defendants. Such litigation may arise, for example, when one or more stockholders bring a stockholders’ derivative action or a so-called “class action” against the client or its management, its officers, directors, underwriters and covered members under the securities laws. Such primary litigation in itself would not alter fundamental relationships between the client or its management and the covered member and therefore would not be deemed to have an adverse impact on independence. These situations should be examined carefully, however, since the potential for adverse interests may exist if cross-claims are filed against the covered member alleging that the covered member is responsible for any deficiencies or if the covered member alleges fraud or deceit by the present management as a defense. In assessing the extent to which independence may be impaired under these conditions, the covered member should consider the following additional guidelines:

1. The existence of cross-claims filed by the client, its management, or any of its directors to protect a right to legal redress in the event of a future adverse decision in the primary litigation (or, in lieu of cross-claims, agreements to extend the statute of limitations) would not normally affect the relationship between client management and the covered member in such a way as to impair independence, unless there exists a significant risk that the cross-claim will result in a settlement or judgment in an amount material to the covered member’s firm\(^6\) or to the client.

2. The assertion of cross-claims against the covered member by underwriters would not generally impair independence if no such claims are asserted by the client or the present management.

3. If any of the persons who file cross-claims against the covered member are also officers or directors of other clients of the covered member, independence with respect to such other clients would not generally be considered to be impaired.

\(^4\) Because of the complexities of litigation and the circumstances under which it may arise, it is not possible to prescribe meaningful criteria for measuring materiality; accordingly, the covered member should consider the nature of the controversy underlying the litigation and all other relevant factors in reaching a judgment.

\(^5\) Because of the complexities of litigation and the circumstances under which it may arise, it is not possible to prescribe meaningful criteria for measuring materiality; accordingly, the covered member should consider the nature of the controversy underlying the litigation and all other relevant factors in reaching a judgment.

\(^6\) Because of the complexities of litigation and the circumstances under which it may arise, it is not possible to prescribe meaningful criteria for measuring materiality; accordingly, the covered member should consider the nature of the controversy underlying the litigation and all other relevant factors in reaching a judgment.
Other Third-Party Litigation

Another type of third-party litigation against the covered member may be commenced by a lending institution, other creditor, security holder, or insurance company who alleges reliance on financial statements of the client with which the covered member is associated as a basis for extending credit or insurance coverage to the client. In some instances, an insurance company may commence litigation (under subrogation rights) against the covered member in the name of the client to recover losses reimbursed to the client. These types of litigation would not normally affect independence with respect to a client who is either not the plaintiff or is only the nominal plaintiff, since the relationship between the covered member and client management would not be affected. They should be examined carefully, however, since the potential for adverse interests may exist if the covered member alleges, in his defense, fraud, or deceit by the present management.

If the real party in interest in the litigation (e.g., the insurance company) is also a client of the covered member (“the plaintiff client”), independence with respect to the plaintiff client may be impaired if the litigation involves a significant risk of a settlement or judgment in an amount which would be material to the covered member’s firm\(^7\) or to the plaintiff client.

Effects of Impairment of Independence

If the covered member believes that the circumstances would lead a reasonable person having knowledge of the facts to conclude that the actual or intended litigation poses an unacceptable threat to independence, the covered member should either: a) disengage himself or herself; or b) disclaim an opinion because of lack of independence. Such disengagement may take the form of resignation or cessation of any attest engagement then in progress pending resolution of the issue between the parties.

Termination of Impairment

The conditions giving rise to a lack of independence are generally eliminated when a final resolution is reached and the matters at issue no longer affect the relationship between the covered member and client. The covered member should carefully review the conditions of such resolution to determine that all impairments to the covered member’s objectivity have been removed.

\(^7\) Because of the complexities of litigation and the circumstances under which it may arise, it is not possible to prescribe meaningful criteria for measuring materiality; accordingly, the covered member should consider the nature of the controversy underlying the litigation and all other relevant factors in reaching a judgment.
RULE 102 – INTEGRITY AND OBJECTIVITY

OBSERVATION: It would be impractical to define all situations that would lead to an impairment of objectivity or integrity. Integrity is difficult to judge because any particular fault by omission or commission may be the result of either honest error or lack of integrity.

Interpretation 102-1 (Knowing Misrepresentations in the Preparation of Financial Statements or Records) A member shall be considered to have knowingly misrepresented facts in violation of Rule 102 when he or she knowingly:

- a. Makes, or permits or directs another to make, materially false and misleading entries in an entity’s financial statements or records; or
- b. Fails to correct an entity’s financial statements or records that are materially false and misleading when he or she has the authority to record an entry; or
- c. Signs, or permits or directs another to sign, a document containing materially false and misleading information.

Interpretation 102-2 (Conflicts of Interest) A conflict of interest may occur if a member performs a professional service for a client or employer and the member or his or her firm has a relationship with another person, entity, product, or service that could, in the member's professional judgment, be viewed by the client, employer, or other appropriate parties as impairing the member's objectivity. If the member believes that the professional service can be performed with objectivity, and the relationship is disclosed to and consent is obtained from such client, employer, or other appropriate parties, the rule shall not operate to prohibit the performance of the professional service. When making the disclosure, the member should consider Rule 301, Confidential Client Information.

Certain professional engagements, such as audits, reviews, and other attest services, require independence. Independence impairments under Rule 101, its interpretations, and rulings cannot be eliminated by such disclosure and consent.

The following are examples, not all-inclusive, of situations that should cause a member to consider whether or not the client, employer, or other appropriate parties could view the relationship as impairing the member's objectivity:

- A member has been asked to perform litigation services for the plaintiff in connection with a lawsuit filed against a client of the member's firm.
- A member has provided tax or personal financial planning (PFP) services for a married couple who are undergoing a divorce, and the member has been asked to provide the services for both parties during the divorce proceedings.
- In connection with a PFP engagement, a member plans to suggest that the client invest in a business in which he or she has a financial interest.
- A member provides tax or PFP services for several members of a family who may have opposing interests.
- A member has a significant financial interest, is a member of management, or is in a position of influence in a company that is a major competitor of a client for which the member performs management consulting services.

- A member serves on a city's board of tax appeals, which considers matters involving several of the member's tax clients.

- A member has been approached to provide services in connection with the purchase of real estate from a client of the member's firm.

- A member refers a PFP or tax client to an insurance broker or other service provider, which refers clients to the member under an exclusive arrangement to do so.

- A member recommends or refers a client to a service bureau in which the member or partner(s) in the member's firm hold material financial interest(s).

The above examples are not intended to be all-inclusive.

Q: A CPA firm represents two clients. The clients have adverse interests in a controversy involving a limited partnership of which each client owns a percentage. Can the CPA continue to advise both clients? The work the CPA performs does not require independence.

A: The CPA would have a conflict of interest. If the relationships are disclosed to and consent is obtained from all appropriate parties, the CPA could continue to advise both parties. However, the CPA would have to observe Rule 301: Confidential Client Information.

Interpretation 102-3 (Obligations of a Member to His or Her Employer’s External Accountant) Under Rule 102, a member must maintain objectivity and integrity in the performance of a professional service. In dealing with his or her employer's external accountant, a member must be candid and not knowingly misrepresent facts or knowingly fail to disclose material facts. This would include, for example, responding to specific inquiries for which his or her employer's external accountant requests written representation.

Interpretation 102-4 (Subordination of Judgment by a Member) Rule 102 prohibits a member from knowingly misrepresenting facts or subordinating his or her judgment when performing professional services. Under this rule, if a member and his or her supervisor have a disagreement or dispute relating to the preparation of financial statements or the recording of transactions, the member should take the following steps to ensure that the situation does not constitute a subordination of judgment:

1. The member should consider whether (a) the entry or the failure to record a transaction in the records, or (b) the financial statement presentation or the nature or omission of disclosure in the financial statements, as proposed by the supervisor, represents the use of an acceptable alternative and does not materially misrepresent the facts. If, after appropriate research or consultation, the member concludes that the matter has authoritative support and/or does not result in a material misrepresentation, the member need do nothing further.
2. If the member concludes that the financial statements or records could be materially misstated, the member should make his or her concerns known to the appropriate higher level(s) of management within the organization (for example, the supervisor’s immediate superior, senior management, the audit committee or equivalent, the board of directors, the company’s owners). The member should consider documenting his or her understanding of the facts, the accounting principles involved, the application of those principles to the facts, and the parties with whom these matters were discussed.

3. If, after discussing his or her concerns with the appropriate person(s) in the organization, the member concludes that appropriate action was not taken, he or she should consider his or her continuing relationship with the employer. The member also should consider any responsibility that may exist to communicate to third parties, such as regulatory authorities or the employer’s (former employer’s) external accountant. In this connection, the member may wish to consult with his or her legal counsel.

4. The member should at all times be cognizant of his or her obligations under Interpretation 102-3.

OBSERVATION: In an audit engagement, guidance established by SAS No. 108 (Planning and Supervision) with respect to the subordination of judgment should be observed.

Q: Cindy Steffen is a CPA and the controller of Company X Inc. In preparing the financial statements for the quarter ended March 31, 2005, Steffen proposes to reduce obsolete inventory to net realizable value. The obsolete items represent a significant amount of total inventory. The CFO concurs with Steffen’s position. However, he decides not to go against the CEO whose position is that reducing the inventory this quarter is a discretionary decision and the CEO would prefer to record any such reduction at year end, after Company X completes its anticipated public offering of stock later this year. What are the ethical obligations of Steffen’s in this situation?

A: To avoid subordinating her judgment, Steffen should first determine whether the inventory writedown is material. If so, she should restate her concerns to the CFO and CEO and, if the latter persists in not supporting the writedown, Steffen should bring the matter to the attention of the audit committee of the board of directors. She should document the understanding of the facts, the accounting principles involved, the application of the principles to the facts, and the parties with whom discussions were held. Steffen should consider any responsibility that may exist to go outside the company, although legal counsel should be sought on this matter.

Interpretation 102-5 (Applicability of Rule 102 to Members Performing Educational Services) Educational services (for example, teaching full- or part-time at a university, teaching a continuing professional education course, or engaging in research and scholarship) are professional services as defined in ET section 92.11 and are therefore subject to Rule 102. Rule 102 provides that the member shall maintain objectivity and integrity, shall be free of conflicts of interest, and shall not knowingly misrepresent facts or subordinate his or her judgment to others.
Interpretation 102-6 (Professional Services Involving Client Advocacy)  A member or a member's firm may be requested by a client—

1. To perform tax or consulting services engagements that involve acting as an advocate for the client.
2. To act as an advocate in support of the client's position on accounting or financial reporting issues, either within the firm or outside the firm with standard setters, regulators, or others.

Services provided or actions taken pursuant to such types of client requests are professional services governed by the Code of Professional Conduct and shall be performed in compliance with Rule 201, General Standards, Rule 202, Compliance With Standards, and Rule 203, Accounting Principles, and interpretations thereof, as applicable. Furthermore, in the performance of any professional service, a member shall comply with Rule 102, which requires maintaining objectivity and integrity and prohibits subordination of judgment to others. When performing professional services requiring independence, a member shall also comply with Rule 101 of the Code of Professional Conduct.

Moreover, there is a possibility that some requested professional services involving client advocacy may appear to stretch the bounds of performance standards, may go beyond sound and reasonable professional practice, or may compromise credibility, and thereby pose an unacceptable risk of impairing the reputation of the member and his or her firm with respect to independence, integrity, and objectivity. In such circumstances, the member and the member's firm should consider whether it is appropriate to perform the service.

RULE 201 – GENERAL STANDARDS

Interpretation 201-1 (Competence) A member's agreement to perform professional services implies that the member has the necessary competence to complete those professional services according to professional standards, applying his or her knowledge and skill with reasonable care and diligence, but the member does not assume a responsibility for infallibility of knowledge or judgment.

Competence to perform professional services involves both the technical qualifications of the member and the member's staff and the ability to supervise and evaluate the quality of the work performed. Competence relates both to knowledge of the profession's standards, techniques and the technical subject matter involved, and to the capability to exercise sound judgment in applying such knowledge in the performance of professional services.

The member may have the knowledge required to complete the services in accordance with professional standards prior to performance. In some cases, however, additional research or consultation with others may be necessary during the performance of the professional services. This does not ordinarily represent a lack of competence, but rather is a normal part of the performance of professional services.
However, if a member is unable to gain sufficient competence through these means, the member should suggest, in fairness to the client and the public, the engagement of someone competent to perform the needed professional service, either independently or as an associate.

OBSERVATION: If a CPA is unable to obtain sufficient technical knowledge, he should refer the engagement to someone competent to perform the needed services.

Case Study

Competency, Auditing Standards and Other Professional Standards

Licensee was subject to a Quality Assurance Review by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Real Estate Assessment Center (HUD). This review included licensee’s audit work for two county housing authorities. The opinion issued by HUD found that the licensee did not comply with all applicable audit standards while performing audits of HUD assisted properties. Documentation for the audit work was not of sufficient standard.

LIKELY DISCIPLINARY ACTION: Violation of Rule 201 – General Standards.

RULE 203 – ACCOUNTING PRINCIPLES

Interpretation 203-1 (Departures from Established Accounting Principles) Rule 203 was adopted to require compliance with accounting principles promulgated by the body designated by Council to establish such principles. There is a strong presumption that adherence to officially established accounting principles would in nearly all instances result in financial statements that are not misleading.

However, in the establishment of accounting principles it is difficult to anticipate all of the circumstances to which such principles might be applied. This rule therefore recognizes that upon occasion there may be unusual circumstances where the literal application of pronouncements on accounting principles would have the effect of rendering financial statements misleading. In such cases, the proper accounting treatment is that which will render the financial statements not misleading.

The question of what constitutes unusual circumstances as referred to in Rule 203 is a matter of professional judgment involving the ability to support the position that adherence to a promulgated principle would be regarded generally by reasonable men as producing a misleading result.

Examples of events which may justify departures from a principle are new legislation or the evolution of a new form of business transaction. An unusual degree of materiality or the existence of conflicting industry practices are examples of circumstances which would not ordinarily be regarded as unusual in the context of Rule 203.
Interpretation 203-2 (Status of FASB, GASB and FASAB Interpretations) Council is authorized under Rule 203 to designate bodies to establish accounting principles. Council has designated the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) as such a body and has resolved that FASB Statements of Financial Accounting Standards, together with those Accounting Research Bulletins and APB Opinions which are not superseded by action of the FASB, constitute accounting principles as contemplated in Rule 203. Council has also designated the Governmental Accounting Standards Board (GASB), with respect to Statements of Governmental Accounting Standards issued in July 1984 and thereafter, as the body to establish financial accounting principles for state and local governmental entities pursuant to Rule 203. Council has also designated the Federal Accounting Standards Advisory Board (FASAB), with respect to Statements of Federal Accounting Standards adopted and issued in March 1993 and subsequently, as the body to establish accounting principles for federal government entities to Rule 203.

In determining the existence of a departure from an accounting principle established by a Statement of Financial Accounting Standards, Accounting Research Bulletin or APB Opinion encompassed by Rule 203, or the existence of a departure from an accounting principle established by a Statement of Governmental Accounting Standards or a Statement of Federal Accounting Standards encompassed by Rule 203, the division of professional ethics will construe such Statements, Bulletin or Opinion in the light of any interpretations thereof issued by the FASB or the GASB.

Interpretation 203-4 (Responsibility of Employees for Preparation of Financial Statements in Conformity with GAAP) Rule 203 provides, in part, that a member shall not state affirmatively that financial statements or other financial data of an entity are presented in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) if such statements or data contain any departure from an accounting principle promulgated by a body designated by Council to establish such principles that has a material effect on the statements or data taken as a whole.

Rule 203 applies to all members with respect to any affirmation that financial statements or other financial data are presented in conformity with GAAP. Representation regarding GAAP conformity included in a letter or other communication from a client entity to its auditor or others related to that entity's financial statements is subject to Rule 203 and may be considered an affirmative statement within the meaning of the rule with respect to members who signed the letter or other communication; for example, signing reports to regulatory authorities, creditors and auditors.

RULE 301 – CONFIDENTIAL CLIENT INFORMATION

Interpretation 301-3 (Confidential Information and the Purchase, Sale, or Merger of a Practice) Rule 301 prohibits a member in public practice from disclosing any confidential client information without the specific consent of the client. The rule provides that it shall not be construed to prohibit the review of a member's professional practice under AICPA or state CPA society authorization.
For purposes of Rule 301, a review of a member’s professional practice is hereby authorized to include a review in conjunction with a prospective purchase, sale, or merger of all or part of a member’s practice. The member must take appropriate precautions (for example, through a written confidentiality agreement) so that the prospective purchaser does not disclose any information obtained in the course of the review, since such information is deemed to be confidential client information.

Members reviewing a practice in connection with a prospective purchase or merger shall not use to their advantage nor disclose any member’s confidential client information that comes to their attention.

Q: The IRS requested that a CPA provide copies of documents relating to a prior client of the CPA. The CPA is not able to locate the client to obtain permission to release the documents. Should the CPA turn the information over to the IRS?

A: No. A CPA cannot release confidential client information without the specific consent of the client unless the CPA receives a validly issued and enforceable subpoena or summons. Information obtained by a licensee can be disclosed in response to an official inquiry from a federal or state government regulatory agency. However, the IRS is considered to be a taxing agency and not a government regulatory agency.

RULE 302 – CONTINGENT FEES

Interpretation 302-1 (Contingent Fees in Tax Matters)  This interpretation defines certain terms in Rule 302 and provides examples of the application of the rule.

Definition of Terms

(a) Preparation of an original or amended tax return or claim for tax refund includes giving advice on events which have occurred at the time the advice is given if such advice is directly relevant to determining the existence, character, or amount of a schedule, entry, or other portion of a return or claim for refund.

(b) A fee is considered determined based on the findings of governmental agencies if the member can demonstrate a reasonable expectation, at the time of a fee arrangement, of substantive consideration by an agency with respect to the member’s client. Such an expectation is deemed not reasonable in the case of preparation of original tax returns.

Examples

The following are examples, not all-inclusive, of circumstances where a contingent fee would be permitted:

1. Representing a client in an examination by a revenue agent of the client's federal or state income tax return.
2. Filing an amended federal or state income tax return claiming a tax refund based on a tax issue that is either the subject of a test case (involving a different taxpayer) or with respect to which the taxing authority is developing a position.

3. Filing an amended federal or state income tax return (or refund claim) claiming a tax refund in an amount greater than the threshold for review by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation ($1 million at March 1991) or state taxing authority.

4. Requesting a refund of either overpayments of interest or penalties charged to a client's account or deposits of taxes improperly accounted for by the federal or state taxing authority in circumstances where the taxing authority has established procedures for the substantive review of such refund requests.

5. Requesting, by means of "protest" or similar document, consideration by the state or local taxing authority of a reduction in the "assessed value" of property under an established taxing authority review process for hearing all taxpayer arguments relating to assessed value.

6. Representing a client in connection with obtaining a private letter ruling or influencing the drafting of a regulation or statute.

The following is an example of a circumstance where a contingent fee would not be permitted:

- Preparing an amended federal or state income tax return for a client claiming a refund of taxes because a deduction was inadvertently omitted from the return originally filed. There is no question as to the propriety of the deduction; rather the claim is filed to correct an omission.

Q: A CPA offers a new client a free one-hour consultation or a 10 percent discount on tax return preparation. Is this acceptable?

A: Yes. These are not prohibited transactions.

OBSERVATION: There are currently no rules in the 400 series.

RULE 501 – ACTS DISCREDITABLE

Interpretation 501-1 (Response to Requests by Clients and Former Clients for Records)

Terminology

The following terms are defined below solely for use with this Interpretation:
• Client provided records are accounting or other records belonging to the client that were provided to the member by or on behalf of the client.

• Client records prepared by the member are accounting or other records (for example, tax returns, general ledgers, subsidiary journals, and supporting schedules such as detailed employee payroll records and depreciation schedules) that the member was engaged to prepare for the client.

• Supporting records are information not reflected in the client’s books and records that are otherwise not available to the client with the result that the client’s financial information is incomplete. For example, supporting records include adjusting, closing, combining, or consolidating journal entries (including computations supporting such entries) that are produced by the member during an engagement (for example, an audit).

• Member’s working papers include, but are not limited to, audit programs, analytical review schedules, and statistical sampling results, analyses, and schedules prepared by the client at the request of the member.

Interpretation

When a client or former client (client) makes a request for client-provided records, client records prepared by the member, or supporting records that are in the custody or control of the member or the member’s firm (member) that have not previously been provided to the client, the member should respond to the client’s request as follows:8

• Client provided records in the member’s custody or control should be returned to the client.

• Client records prepared by the member should be provided to the client, except that client records prepared by the member may be withheld if the preparation of such records is not complete or there are fees due the member for the engagement to prepare those records.

• Supporting records relating to a completed and issued work product should be provided to the client, except that such supporting records may be withheld if there are fees due to the member for the specific work product.

Once the member has complied with these requirements, he or she is under no ethical obligation to comply with any subsequent requests to again provide such records or copies of such records. However, if subsequent to complying with a request, a client experiences a loss of records due to a natural disaster or an act of war, the member should comply with an additional request to provide such records.

8 The member is under no obligation to retain records for periods that exceed applicable professional standards, state and federal statutes and regulations, and contractual agreements relating to the service performed.
Member’s working papers are the member’s property and need not be provided to the client under provisions of this interpretation; however, such requirements may be imposed by state and federal statutes and regulations, and contractual agreements.

In connection with any request for client-provided records, client records prepared by the member, or supporting records, the member may:

- Charge the client a reasonable fee for the time and expense incurred to retrieve and copy such records and require that such fee be paid prior to the time such records are provided to the client;

- Provide the requested records in any format usable by the client;\(^9\) and

- Make and retain copies of any records returned or provided to the client.

Where a member is required to return or provide records to the client, the member should comply with the client’s request as soon as practicable but, absent extenuating circumstances, no later than 45 days after the request is made. The fact that the statutes of the state in which the member practices grants the member a lien on certain records in his or her custody or control does not relieve the member of his or her obligation to comply with this interpretation. In addition, certain states have laws and regulations that impose obligations on the member greater than the provisions of this interpretation and should be complied with.

Interpretation 501-2 (Discrimination in Employment Practices) Whenever a member is finally determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to have violated any of the antidiscrimination laws of the United States or any state or municipality thereof, including those related to sexual and other forms of harassment, or has waived or lost his/her right of appeal after a hearing by an administrative agency, the member will be presumed to have committed an act discreditable to the profession in violation of Rule 501.

OBSERVATION: These acts are also a violation of federal and state law.

Interpretation 501-3 (Failure to Follow Standards and/or Procedures or Other Requirements in Governmental Audits) Engagements for audits of government grants, government units or other recipients of government monies typically require that such audits be in compliance with government audit standards, guides, procedures, statutes, rules, and regulations, in addition to generally accepted auditing standards. If a member has accepted such an engagement and undertakes an obligation to follow specified government audit standards, guides, procedures, statutes, rules and regulations, in addition to generally accepted auditing standards, he is obligated to follow such requirements. Failure to do so is an act discreditable to the profession in violation of Rule 501, unless the member discloses in his report the fact that such requirements were not followed and the reasons therefore.

\(^9\) The member is not required to convert records that are not in electronic format. However, if the client requests records in a specific format and the member was engaged to prepare the records in that format, the client’s request should be honored.
Interpretation 501-4 (Negligence in the Preparation of Financial Statements or Records) A member shall be considered to have committed an act discreditable to the profession in violation of Rule 501 when, by virtue of his or her negligence, such member –

a. Makes, or permits or directs another to make, materially false and misleading entries in the financial statements or records of an entity; or
b. Fails to correct an entity’s financial statements that are materially false and misleading when the member has the authority to record an entry; or
c. Signs, or permits or directs another to sign, a document containing materially false and misleading information.

Interpretation 501-5 (Failure to Follow Requirements of Governmental Bodies, Commissions, or Other Regulatory Agencies) Many governmental bodies, commissions or other regulatory agencies have established requirements such as audit standards, guides, rules, and regulations that members are required to follow in the preparation of financial statements or related information, or in performing attest or similar services for entities subject to their jurisdiction. For example, the Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Communications Commission, state insurance commissions, and other regulatory agencies, such as the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, have established such requirements.

If a member prepares financial statements or related information (for example, management’s discussion and analysis) for purposes of reporting to such bodies, commissions, or regulatory agencies, the member should follow the requirements of such organizations in addition to generally accepted accounting principles. If a member agrees to perform an attest or similar service for the purpose of reporting to such bodies, commissions, or regulatory agencies, the member should follow such requirements, in addition to generally accepted auditing standards (where applicable). A material departure from such requirements is an act discreditable to the profession, unless the member discloses in the financial statements or his or her report, as applicable, that such requirements were not followed and the reasons therefore.

Case Study
Acts Discreditable

According to the Department of Labor, most SIMPLE IRA plans are also subject to Title I of ERISA. Under the Department of Labor regulations at 29 CFR 2510.3-102, salary reduction contributions to these plans must be made to the SIMPLE IRA as of the earliest date on which the contributions can reasonably be segregated from the employer’s general assets, but in no event later than the 30-day deadline described above.

A CPA firm was required to make contributions to the financial institution that managed the CPA firm’s employee SIMPLE IRA plan no later than the close of the 30 day period following the last day of the month in which amounts would otherwise have been payable to the employee in cash. The CPA firm informed employees that SIMPLE IRA funds would not be deposited by the date required. For a period of two years, the CPA firm did not make timely contributions to the financial institution managing the SIMPLE IRA plan. When the CPA firm deposited the funds, the CPA firm also deposited interest into each employee’s SIMPLE IRA plan.
Interpretation 501-6 (Solicitation or Disclosure of CPA Examination Questions and Answers) A member who solicits or knowingly discloses the May 1996 or later Uniform CPA Examination question(s) and/or answer(s) without the written authorization of the AICPA shall be considered to have committed an act discreditable to the profession in violation of Rule 501.

OBSERVATION: Prior to May 1996, exam questions were released after each exam. Accordingly, the prohibition does not apply to exam review courses utilizing pre-1996 exam questions.

Interpretation 501-7 (Failure to File Tax Return or Pay Tax Liability) A member who fails to comply with applicable federal, state, or local laws or regulations regarding the timely filing of his or her personal tax returns or tax returns of the member’s firm, or the timely remittance of all payroll and other taxes collected on behalf of others, may be considered to have committed an act discreditable to the profession in violation of Rule 501.

Interpretation 501-8 (Failure to Follow Requirements of Governmental Bodies, Commissions, or Other Regulatory Agencies on Indemnification and Limitation of Liability Provisions in Connection With Audit and Other Attest Services) Certain governmental bodies, commissions, or other regulatory agencies (collectively, regulators) have established requirements through laws, regulations, or published interpretations that prohibit entities subject to their regulation (regulated entity) from including certain types of indemnification and limitation of liability provisions in agreements for the performance of audit or other attest services that are required by such regulators or that provide that the existence of such provisions causes a member to be disqualified from providing such services to these entities. For example, federal banking regulators, state insurance commissions, and the Securities and Exchange Commission have established such requirements.

If a member enters into, or directs or knowingly permits another individual to enter into, a contract for the performance of audit or other attest services that are subject to the requirements of these regulators, the member should not include, or knowingly permit or direct another individual to include, an indemnification or limitation of liability provision that would cause the regulated entity or a member to be in violation of such requirements or that would cause a member to be disqualified from providing such services to the regulated entity. A member who enters into, or directs or knowingly permits another individual to enter into, such an agreement for the performance of audit or other attest services that would cause the regulated entity or a member to be in violation of such requirements, or that would cause a member to be disqualified from providing such services to the regulated entity, would be considered to have committed an act discreditable to the profession.

RULE 502 – ADVERTISING AND OTHER FORMS OF SOLICITATION

Interpretation 502-2 (False, Misleading or Deceptive Acts in Advertising or Solicitation) Advertising or other forms of solicitation that are false, misleading, or deceptive are not in the public interest and are prohibited. Such activities include those that:

- Create false or unjustified expectations of favorable results
- Imply the ability to influence any court, tribunal, regulatory agency or similar body or official
- Contain a representation that specific professional services in current or future periods will be performed for a stated fee, estimated fee or fee range when it was likely at the time of the representation that such fees would be substantially increased and the prospective client was not advised of that likelihood
- Contain any other representations that would be likely to cause a reasonable person to misunderstand or be deceived.

Case Study

Public Communications and Advertising

Smith CPA LLC circulated an advertisement in a local newspaper that stated the following:

“Professional Service Warranty which guarantees you the largest refund possible with the lowest tax liability.”

The advertisement guaranteed the reader the largest refund possible with the lowest tax liability. The advertisement did not state or explain how the services could be verified to provide the largest refund or the lowest tax liability.

Interpretation 502-5 (Engagements Obtained Through Efforts of Third Parties) Members are often asked to render professional services to clients or customers of third parties. Such third parties may have obtained such clients or customers as the result of their advertising and solicitation efforts.

Members are permitted to enter into such engagements. The member has the responsibility to ascertain that all promotional efforts are within the bounds of the Rules of Conduct. Such action is required because the members will receive the benefits of such efforts by third parties, and members must not do through others what they are prohibited from doing themselves by the Rules of Conduct.
RULE 505 – FORM OF ORGANIZATION AND NAME

A member may practice public accounting only in a form of organization permitted by law or regulation whose characteristics conform to resolutions of Council.

A member shall not practice public accounting under a firm name that is misleading. Names of one or more past owners may be included in the firm name of a successor organization.

A firm may not designate itself as “Members of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants” unless all of its CPA owners are members of the Institute.

Firm Names

No firm title need name every owner. Such a requirement could become unworkable. The firm may use the names of all or some of the owners. Or the firm may follow the name of one or more owners with designations “Company”, “and Company”, or “associates.” Thus, the firm “Howard, Fine and Howard” could choose instead to describe itself (among other possibilities) as “The Mo Howard Company,” “Mo Howard and Company,” “Howard, Fine and Associates,” or “Fine, Howard and Company.”

The firm name is a valuable asset, protected by law; it represents the professional competence and reliability of each member of the firm, whether the member’s own name is included in the title or not. No wonder the firm is slow to change it – even when individual owners die, retire or strike out on their own.

Rule 505 acknowledges this concern for continuity:

Names of one or more past owners may be included in the firm name of a successor organization. Also, an owner surviving the death or withdrawal of all other owners may continue to practice under a name which includes the name of past owners for up to two years after becoming a sole proprietor.

Fictitious Names

The rules over the years have historically prohibited the use of fictitious names or names that indicated a specialty.

It was felt that the rule regarding firm name should be consistent with the rule on advertising. The only restriction now left on advertising is that it not be false, misleading or deceptive. Since a member may now advertise a specialty, there is no reason a firm name should not be allowed to do so if the false, misleading, or deceptive test is met.

Q: Three CPA firms wish to form an association – not a partnership – to be known as “Smith, Jones and Assoc.” Is there any impropriety in this?

A: The use of such a title is not permitted since it might mislead the public into thinking a true partnership exists. Instead, each firm is advised to use its own name on its letterhead, indicating the other two as correspondents.
Interpretation 505-1 Deleted.

Interpretation 505-2 (Application of Rules of Conduct to Members Who Own a Separate Business) A member in the practice of public accounting may own an interest in a separate business that performs for clients any of the professional services of accounting, tax, personal financial planning, litigation support services, and those services for which standards are promulgated by bodies designated by Council. If the member, individually or collectively with his or her firm or with members of his or her firm controls the separate business (as defined by generally accepted accounting principles [GAAP] in the United States of America), the entity and all its owners (including the member) and employees must comply with all of the provisions of the Code of Professional Conduct. For example, in applying Rule 503, Commissions and Referral Fees, if one or more members individually or collectively can control the separate business, such business would be subject to Rule 503, its interpretations and rulings. With respect to an attest client, Rule 101 and all its interpretations and rulings would apply to the separate business, its owners and employees.

If the member, individually or collectively with his or her firm or with members of his or her firm, does not control the separate business, the provisions of the Code would apply to the member for his or her actions but not apply to the entity, its other owners and employees. For example, the entity could enter into a contingent fee arrangement with an attest client of the member or accept commissions for the referral of products or services to such attest client.

Interpretation 505-3 (Application of Rule 505 to Alternative Practice Structures) Rule 505, Form of Organization and Name, states, “A member may practice public accounting only in a form of organization permitted by law or regulation whose characteristics conform to resolutions of Council.” The Council Resolution requires, among other things, that a majority of the financial interests in a firm engaged in attest services (as defined therein) be owned by CPAs. In the context of alternative practice structures (APS) in which: 1) the majority of the financial interests in the attest firm is owned by CPAs; and 2) all or substantially all of the revenues are paid to another entity in return for services and the lease of employees, equipment, and office space, questions have arisen as to the applicability of Rule 505.

The overriding focus of the Resolution is that CPAs remain responsible, financially and otherwise, for the attest work performed to protect the public interest. The Resolution contains many requirements that were developed to ensure that responsibility. In addition to the provisions of the Resolution, other requirements of the Code of Professional Conduct and bylaws ensure that responsibility:
a. Compliance with all aspects of applicable state law or regulation.

b. Enrollment in an AICPA-approved practice monitoring program.

c. Membership in the SEC practice section if the attest work is for SEC clients (as defined by Council).

d. Compliance with the independence rules prescribed by Rule 101, Independence.

e. Compliance with applicable standards promulgated by Council-designated bodies (Rule 202, Compliance With Standards) and all other provisions of the Code, including, Applicability.

Taken in the context of all the above-mentioned safeguards of the public interest, if the CPAs who own the attest firm remain financially responsible, under applicable law or regulation, the member is considered to be in compliance with the financial interests provision of the Resolution.
CHAPTER 2 – REVIEW QUESTIONS

The following questions are designed to ensure that you have a complete understanding of the information presented in the chapter. They do not need to be submitted in order to receive CPE credit. They are included as an additional tool to enhance your learning experience.

We recommend that you answer each review question and then compare your response to the suggested solution before answering the final exam questions related to this chapter.

1. A potential audit client is owned by the CPA’s stepsister. Which of the following is true regarding Rule 101 (independence):

   a) a stepsister is considered a close relative and would impair independence
   b) a stepsister is not considered a relative and would never impair independence
   c) if the CPA’s relationship to the stepsister is very close, independence may be impaired
   d) none of the above

2. Litigation brought by security holders against the client, its officers, directors, underwriters and auditors would definitely impair the auditor’s independence with respect to the client.

   a) true
   b) false

3. A CPA represents two clients. The clients have adverse interest involving a limited partnership of which both clients own a percentage. Which of the following is true regarding Rule 102:

   a) the CPA lacks independence and may not do any work for either of the clients
   b) the CPA lacks independence and must cease working for one of the clients
   c) although the CPA has a conflict of interest, he may continue working for both clients provided: 1) the work performed does not require independence, and 2) the relationships are disclosed to and consent is obtained from all appropriate parties
   d) none of the above

4. If a CPA is subpoenaed to testify, he/she is not required to follow court orders due to client confidentiality.

   a) true
   b) false
5. A CPA may not charge a contingent fee when representing a client in an attempt to obtain a private letter ruling or influence the drafting of tax laws or regulations.

   a) true
   b) false

6. A firm with a retiring partner can continue to use his/her name as part of the firm title.

   a) true
   b) false
CHAPTER 2 – SOLUTIONS AND SUGGESTED RESPONSES

1. A: Incorrect. A stepsister is not automatically considered a close relative.
   B: Incorrect. A stepsister could be a close relative.
   C: Correct. Independence is impaired only if the relationship is close.
   D: Incorrect. Independence may be impaired.
   (See Interpretation 101-1 in the course material.)

2. A: True is incorrect. The litigation in this example does not put the CPA in conflict with the client.
   B: False is correct. Since the plaintiff is not the client, the CPA can remain objective.
   (See Interpretation 101-6 in the course material.)

3. A: Incorrect. The clients have the adverse interest, not the CPA.
   B: Incorrect. A CPA may do work for two clients with adverse interests.
   C: Correct. The clients are better served by allowing the CPA to continue serving them both.
   D: Incorrect. The CPA has a conflict but may continue working for both clients.
   (See Interpretation 102-2 in the course material.)

4. A: True is incorrect. Client confidentiality is overruled by a court order.
   B: False is correct. A CPA must comply with a valid court order.
   (See Interpretation 301-3 in the course material.)
5. A: True is incorrect. A CPA may not charge a contingent fee for preparing an income tax return.

B: False is correct. A CPA may charge a contingent fee for these activities since a third party must ultimately act in the client’s favor for the CPA to earn the contingent fee.

(See Interpretation 302-1 in the course material.)

6. A: True is correct. Names of one or more past owners may be included in the firm name of a successor organization.

B: False is incorrect. Fictitious names are generally allowed.

CHAPTER 3: DELAWARE SPECIFIC INFORMATION

Objectives: After completing this course, you will be able to:

• Differentiate between the law and the regulations
• Research the law and regulations as they apply to accountancy
• Explain why the AICPA’s Code of Conduct must be followed by Delaware CPAs

Board Function

The Delaware State Board of Accountancy (hereafter designated as “the Board”) licenses public accountants, certified public accountants, and accounting firms. The Board also issues certificates to certified public accountant certificate holders. The Board ensures that applicants are qualified to become licensed and has the authority to discipline licensees. (24 Del. C., Chapter 1, § 101-123).

Frequency of Meetings

The Board meets the third Wednesday of each month at 8:30 a.m., with the exception of March and December. All meetings are open to the general public and are held in the Cannon Building, 861 Silver Lake Blvd., in Dover.

The Law and Regulations

The Legislature passes the law and the Board passes regulations to carry out the law. Portions of the law and regulations are discussed in this chapter along with numerous case studies to help you analyze ethical practices.
THE LAW

TITLE 24
Professions and Occupations
CHAPTER 1. BOARD OF ACCOUNTANCY
§ 101. Objectives and functions.
The primary objective of the Board of Accountancy, to which all other objectives and purposes are secondary, is to protect the general public (specifically those persons who are direct recipients of services regulated by this chapter) from unsafe practices, including incompetent auditing, accounting and tax services rendered by certificate and permit holders, and from occupational practices which tend to reduce competition or fix the price of services rendered. Secondary objectives of the Board include maintaining minimum standards of competency in accounting, auditing and tax services rendered by certificate and permit holders and maintaining minimum standards in the delivery of such services to the public. In meeting its objectives, the Board shall develop standards assuring professional competence, shall monitor complaints brought against practitioners regulated by the Board, adjudicate such complaints at formal hearings, promulgate rules and regulations, and impose sanctions where necessary against practitioners.

§ 102. Definitions.
The following definitions shall apply, unless the definition is inappropriate for the context:

(1) "Board" means the Delaware State Board of Accountancy.

(2) "Certificate" means a certificate of "certified public accountant" issued by the Board pursuant to this chapter or the prior law of this State, or a reciprocal certificate of certified public accountant issued by this Board.

(3) "Certified public accountant" means the holder of a certificate and permit to practice.

(4) "Certified public accounting" or "the practice of certified public accountancy" means public accounting that is being practiced by a certified public accountant.

(5) "Division" means the State of Delaware Division of Professional Regulation.

(6) "Firm" means a sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation or any other entity authorized under Delaware law or a similar statute of another state.

(7) "Nonpublic entity" means an entity other than one whose securities trade in a public market either on a stock exchange (domestic or foreign) or in the over-the-counter market, including securities quoted only locally or regionally, or an entity that makes a filing with a regulatory agency in preparation for the sale of any of its securities in a public market.

(8) "Permit" or "permit to practice" means a permit issued by the Board to practice either public accountancy or certified public accountancy.
(9) "Principal place of business" means the office location designated by the practice privilege holder for purposes of substantial equivalency and reciprocity.

(10) "Public accountant" means the holder of a permit to practice public accountancy.

(11) "Public accounting" or "practice of public accountancy" means the performance, or offer to perform, for a client or a potential client, by a person or firm holding itself out to the public as a permit holder, of 1 or more kinds of services involving the use of accounting or auditing skills, including the issuance of reports or financial statements, or of 1 or more kinds of management advisory, financial advisory or consulting services, or the preparation of tax returns or the furnishing of advice on tax matters.

(12) "Regulation" means any rule or regulation duly adopted by the Board.

(13) "State" means any state of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands and Guam; except that "this State" means the State of Delaware.

(14) "Substantially related" means the nature of the criminal conduct, for which the person was convicted, has a direct bearing on the fitness or ability to perform 1 or more of the duties or responsibilities necessarily related to accountancy.

§ 106. Certificate or permit required.

(a) The use of the title or designation "certified public accountant" or the abbreviation "CPA" or any other title, designation, words, letters, abbreviation, sign, card or device tending to indicate that a person is a certified public accountant shall be limited to a person who holds a valid certificate and permit to practice issued by the Board pursuant to this chapter or issued under the laws of another jurisdiction, except that a person who holds a valid certificate, but is not engaged in the practice of certified public accountancy or public accountancy, may use the abbreviation "CPA"; provided, that it is clearly indicated that such person is not holding himself or herself out as practicing certified public accountancy.

(b) The use of the title or designation "public accountant" or the abbreviation "PA" or any other title, designation, words, letters, abbreviation, sign, card or device tending to indicate that such person is a public accountant shall be limited to a person who holds a valid permit to practice.

§ 110. Requirements for permits to practice public accountancy.

(a) Each person who intends to be or is engaged in the practice of public accountancy in this State, whether as a principal of a firm or an employee of a firm, shall be required to obtain and maintain a valid permit to practice public accountancy. The Board shall grant and/or renew permits to persons who make application and demonstrate their qualifications in accordance with this section.

(b) Permits shall be issued and renewed for periods of 2 years. The Board shall grant or deny any application for issuance or renewal of a permit no later than 120 days after the application is filed in proper form. In any case, where the applicant seeks the opportunity to show that issuance or renewal of a permit was mistakenly denied, or where the Board is not able to determine whether a permit should be granted or denied, the Board may issue to the applicant a provisional permit, which shall expire 90 days after its issuance or when the Board determines whether or not to issue or renew the permit for which application was made, whichever shall first occur.

(c) Omitted

(d) An applicant for renewal of a permit under this section shall show that the applicant has completed no less than 80 hours of continuing professional education in accordance with Board guidelines during the 2-year renewal period that has elapsed since the last biennial renewal date. Prorated continuing professional education requirements consisting of no less than 40 hours are to be met by an applicant whose initial permit was issued less than 2 years and at least 1 year prior to the renewal date. No continuing professional education is required of an applicant whose initial permit was issued less than 1 year prior to the renewal date. The Board may also provide by regulation that fulfillment of continuing professional education requirements of other states will be accepted in lieu of the foregoing requirements; provided, that such other states require at least 80 hours in a 2-year period. (65 Del. Laws, c. 167, § 1; 70 Del. Laws, c. 186, § 1; 71 Del. Laws, c. 139, § 1.)

§ 111. Requirements for permits to practice by firms.

(a) Each firm which intends to be or is engaged in the practice of certified public accountancy or the practice of public accountancy in this State shall be required to obtain and maintain a valid permit to practice. The Board shall grant or renew permits to firms that make application and demonstrate their qualifications in accordance with this section.

(b) Permits shall be renewed biennially. The Board shall grant or deny any application for issuance or renewal of a permit no later than 120 days after the application is filed in proper form. In any case where the applicant seeks the opportunity to show that issuance or renewal of a permit was mistakenly denied or where the Board is not able to determine whether it should be granted or denied, the Board may issue to the applicant a provisional permit, which shall expire 90 days after its issuance or when the Board determines whether or not to issue or renew the permit for which the application was made, whichever shall first occur.

(c) An applicant for initial issuance or renewal of a permit to practice certified public accountancy under this section shall be required to show that each principal who performs services in this State, or who performs services for a client or clients located in this State, and each employee holding a certificate who performs services in this State, or who performs services for a client or clients located in this State, except for employees who have not as yet accumulated sufficient experience to qualify for a permit under § 107 of this title, holds a valid individual permit to practice certified public accountancy issued under § 107 of this title.

§ 112. Professional responsibilities.

While § 111(a) of this title requires firms to obtain permits to practice, and § 102(6) of this title defines "firm" to include valid partnerships and corporations, this chapter shall not be interpreted to alter professional responsibility standards. All firms and accountants practicing in firms shall continue to be bound by professional responsibility standards no less stringent than those stated in § 608 of Title 8.
§ 115. Prohibited acts; limitation of services.

(a) No person or firm shall perform compilation, review or audit services, as defined by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA), except holders of a valid permit to practice.

(b) Audit services provided by holders of permits to practice public accountancy shall be limited to services for nonpublic entities.

§ 116. Complaints.

(a) The Board or any aggrieved person may file a complaint against any individual or firm holding a permit to practice or any certificate holder. All complaints shall be received and investigated by the Division in accordance with § 8735 of Title 29, and the Division shall be responsible for issuing a final written report at the conclusion of its investigation.

(b) When it is determined that an individual or firm is engaged in the practice of certified public accountancy or public accountancy without having first obtained the appropriate permit, the Board shall apply to the office of the Attorney General to issue a cease and desist order after formally warning the individual or firm in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

(c) Any complaints involving allegations of unprofessional conduct or incompetence shall be investigated by the Division of Professional Regulation.

§ 117. Grounds for discipline.

An individual holding a certificate and any individual or firm holding a permit to practice shall be subject to those disciplinary actions set forth in § 118 of this title if, after a hearing, the Board finds that the individual or firm:

(1) Has employed or knowingly cooperated in fraud or material deception in order to acquire a certificate or permit to practice or be otherwise authorized to practice accountancy; or impersonated another person holding a certificate or permit to practice; or allowed another person to use the individual's certificate or permit to practice; or aided or abetted a person not holding a certificate or permit to practice to represent himself or herself as holding a certificate or permit to practice;

(2) Has engaged in an act of fraud or gross negligence in the practice of accounting or engaged in dishonorable, unethical or unprofessional conduct intended to or likely to deceive, defraud or harm the public;

(3) Has been found guilty of or has entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendere to a crime that is substantially related to the practice of accountancy;

(4) Has been subject to disciplinary sanction or censured or has had the individual's certificate or permit to practice revoked or suspended in any other state for any cause other than failure to pay an annual registration fee;
(5) Has been subject to disciplinary sanction or censured or has had the individual's right to practice revoked before any state or federal agency; or

(6) Has violated a lawful provision of this chapter or any lawful regulation or rule of professional conduct established thereunder.

§ 118. Disciplinary sanctions.

(a) The Board may impose any of the following sanctions or take any of the following actions, singly or in combination, when it finds that 1 of the conditions or violations set forth in § 117 of this title applies to a certificate or permit holder:

(1) Issue a letter of reprimand;

(2) Censure the practitioner or firm;

(3) Suspend the certificate or permit to practice of any certificate or permit holder or firm;

(4) Place the certificate or permit holder on probationary status and require the certificate or permit holder to:
   a. Report regularly to the Board upon the matters which are the basis of the probation;
   b. Limit all practice and professional activities to those areas prescribed by the Board; and/or
   c. Continue or renew the certificate or permit holder's professional education until the required degree of skill has been attained in the areas which are the basis of the probation; and/or

(5) Revoke the certificate or permit to practice of an individual certificate holder or the permit to practice of an individual or firm.

(b) The Board may refuse or reject an applicant for a certificate if, after a hearing, the Board finds that an applicant has misstated or misrepresented a material fact in connection with the applicant's application; has violated any section of the Code of Professional Conduct for Accountants; or practiced public accountancy or certified public accountancy without being registered in accordance with this chapter.

(c) The Board may withdraw or reduce conditions of probation when it finds that the deficiencies which required such actions have been remedied.

(d) Upon an application (or petition), in writing, and after notice and a hearing, the Board may issue a new certificate or a permit to a person or firm whose certificate or permit has been revoked or suspended or modify the terms of any suspension.
§ 120. Ownership of working papers.

(a) All statements, records, schedules, working papers and memoranda made by a permit holder or a partner, shareholder, officer, director or employee of a permit holder, incident to or in the course of rendering services to a client, except the reports submitted by the permit holder to the client, and except for records that are part of the client's records, shall be and remain the property of the permit holder in the absence of an express agreement between the permit holder and the client to the contrary. No such statement, record, schedule, working paper or memorandum shall be sold, transferred or bequeathed without the consent of the client or the client's personal representative or assignee, to anyone other than 1 or more surviving partners or stockholders or new partners or stockholders of the permit holder or any combined or merged firm or successor in interest to the permit holder. Nothing in this section should be construed as prohibiting any temporary transfer of working papers or other material necessary in the course of carrying out quality reviews.

(b) A permit holder shall furnish to permit holder's client or former client, upon request and reasonable notice:

(1) A copy of the permit holder's working papers, to the extent that such working papers include records that would ordinarily constitute part of the client's records and are not otherwise available to the client; or

(2) Any accounting or other records belonging to or obtained from or on behalf of the client that the permit holder removed from the client's premises or received for the client's account; the permit holder may make and retain copies of such documents of the client when they form the basis for work done by the permit holder.

(c) Nothing herein shall require a permit holder to keep any working paper beyond the period prescribed in any other applicable statute.
In-depth Analysis

Client Records and Working Papers

Licensees may not withhold client records and working papers based on the client’s refusal to pay the licensee’s fees.

The law requires licensees to provide to a client or former client any records belonging to or obtained from or on behalf of the client, and a copy of the licensee’s working papers, to the extent that the working papers include records that would ordinarily constitute part of the client’s records and are not otherwise available to the client.

The requirement to return client records and working papers differs depending on whether or not the licensee has issued the work product that is the subject of the engagement.

- A client’s request for return of records that is made within a reasonable time and that occurs prior to the issuance of tax return, financial statement, report or other document prepared by a licensee: the licensee shall furnish, within a reasonable time to the client or former client any accounting or other records belonging to or obtained from or on behalf of the client, that the licensee received for the client’s account or removed from the client’s premises.

  Explanation: If the CPA received any records owned by the client, the records must be returned. Client records do not include the work product or working papers of the CPA.

- A client’s request for return of records that is made within a reasonable time and that occurs after the issuance of a tax return, financial statement, report or other document prepared by a licensee: the licensee shall furnish, within a reasonable time to the client or former client:
  1. A copy of a tax return, financial statement, report or other document issued by a licensee to or for such client or former client;
  2. Any accounting or other records belonging to or obtained from or on behalf of the client that the licensee removed from the client’s premises or received for the client’s account; and
  3. A copy of the licensee’s working papers, to the extent that the working papers include records that would ordinarily constitute part of the client’s records and are not otherwise available to the client.
  4. Working papers, for this rule, include but are not limited to all statements, records, schedules, general ledgers, journals, trial balances and depreciation schedules made by a licensee incident to or in the course of rendering services to a client or former client. Working papers are and shall remain the property of the licensee in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary between the licensee and the client.

  Explanation: The licensee is required to provide a copy of the work product that was issued for the engagement and return any records obtained from the client. The requirement to return the working papers may vary; for example, if the client has a complete accounting system including a general ledger, sub ledgers, a fixed asset accounting process and maintains their own account analysis and reconciliations, only copies of the adjusting entries with explanations and any supporting working papers would be necessary.
The client may have a general ledger, but may depend on the CPA to adjust and close the general ledger. In that event, copies of both adjusting entries, with explanations and any supporting papers, and closing entries would be provided to the client.

If the client does not have a general ledger and only provides the CPA with transaction summaries that the CPA uses to prepare a working trial balance, copies of the adjusted working trial balance, transaction entries, adjusting entries with explanations and any supporting working papers, and closing entries would be provided to the client.

If the CPA prepared the fixed asset depreciation schedule because the client does not have one, or because the CPA adjusted the client's schedule, a copy must be provided.

If the CPA prepared a bank reconciliation because the client did not do one, a copy must be provided.

If the CPA determines and prepares schedules of account balances that the client does not ordinarily prepare, and the CPA reported on such schedules, copies must be provided to the client. Examples of such schedules include, but are not limited to:

Investments  Accounts payable  Prepaid expenses
Accrued liabilities  Owner's equity  Current portion of long-term debt Accounts receivable  Bad debts  Income tax expenses and payable

If the client determined the account balances and provided schedules, copies of the schedules with the CPA notes and conclusions are not required to be provided.

Copies of the CPA notes, or conclusions on any accounts or transactions, are only required to be provided to the client if the account balances or transactions reported on cannot be understood without consulting the CPA notes or conclusions.

The decision whether to provide copies of all or part of the accountant's work papers depends on whether the client's records include the same information as the licensee's work product. The client must have sufficient documentation to explain or prove transactions or events that are reported by the licensee in the client's tax returns or financial statements when called upon to do so. If the documentation is sufficient and can be used for such explanation and proof, copies of work papers are not necessary. If the documents are not sufficient, copies of the appropriate work papers are required.

§ 124. Renewals.

In the event that a permit holder fails to timely renew a permit, such permit can be reinstated within a period of 1 year from the lapse of the permit to practice, at the discretion of the Board, upon payment of the regular renewal fee plus an additional late renewal processing fee established by the Division of Professional Regulation, and upon the permit holder furnishing proof of compliance with all other permit requirements established by the Board, including proof that the permit holder has met the continuing education requirements established by the Board.
2.0 Professional Conduct

2.1 A certified public accountant, or a public accountant holding a certificate or permit issued by this Board, agrees to comply with the Rules of Conduct contained in the Code of Professional Ethics of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. All changes in the Rules and Interpretations made by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) shall automatically be made a part of these Rules and Regulations unless specifically rejected by the Board.

Observation: The adoption of the AICPA code by reference is very important. It means that you are legally required to follow AICPA rules in your practice.

8.0 Use of Designations

8.1 Designation "Certified Public Accountant" and the Abbreviation "CPA" in the Practice of Certified or Public Accountancy:

8.1.1 Only the following individuals and entities may use the designation "certified public accountant", the abbreviation "CPA", and other designations which suggest that the user is a certified public accountant, in the practice of certified or public accountancy:

8.1.1.1 An individual who is registered with the Board and holds a certificate of certified public accountant and a current permit to practice.

8.1.1.2 A sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation, or any other entity authorized under Delaware law or a similar statute of another state which is registered with the Board and holds a current firm permit to practice.

Case Study

Holding Out as a Certified Public Accountant

In 2002, the Board mailed Jane Doe (Doe) a renewal application. Doe did not renew, and her permit lapsed on July 1, 2002. Doe submitted a reinstatement application in July 2009. During the time period that Doe’s permit was lapsed, Doe held out as a CPA on business cards.

Likely Board Action: Violation of 8.0 Use of title or designation “Certified Public Accountant” or “CPA.”
8.2 Designation "Certified Public Accountant" and the abbreviation "CPA" by certificate holders who do not maintain a permit to practice:

8.2.1 An individual who holds a certificate of certified public accountant but does not maintain a permit to practice may use the designation "certified public accountant" or the abbreviation "CPA" if:

8.2.1.1 The certificate of certified public accountant has not been suspended or revoked and is in good standing;

8.2.1.2 The individual does not engage in the practice of certified or public accountancy and does not offer to perform certified or public accountancy services; and

8.2.1.3 The individual places the words “not in public practice” adjacent to their CPA title on any business card, letterhead or any other document or device, with the exception of their CPA certificate on which their CPA title appears.

Case Study

Holding Out as a Certified Public Accountant

Able is an Assistant Professor at a Delaware university. Able holds a CPA permit in Washington, but not in Delaware. Able’s name followed by the CPA designation is published on the faculty profile. The profile includes a statement that Able is seeking part-time accounting consulting engagements.

POSSIBLE BOARD ACTION: Violation of 8.2 Use of title or designation “Certified Public Accountant” or “CPA.”

8.3 Designation "Public Accountant" and the abbreviation "PA"

8.3.1 Only the following individuals and entities may use the designation "public accountant," the abbreviation "PA", and other designations which suggest that the user is a public accountant, in the practice of public accountancy.

8.3.1.1 An individual who is registered with the Board and holds a permit to practice public accountancy in good standing.

8.3.1.2 A sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation, or any other entity authorized under Delaware law or a similar statute of another state which is registered with the Board and holds a current firm permit in good standing to practice public accountancy.

8.3.2 An individual may not refer to his or her business or sign tax returns as "John/Jane Doe, PA" without a permit to practice public accountancy.

8.4 No person, sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation, or any other entity authorized under Delaware law or a similar statute of another state shall hold him/her/itself or otherwise use the title or designation "certified accountant", "chartered accountant", "enrolled accountant", "licensed accountant", "registered accountant", "public accountant", or the abbreviation "PA" without a permit to practice public accountancy.
"licensed public accountant", "registered public accountant", or any other title or designation likely to be confused with "certified public accountant" or "public accountant", or any other abbreviations of any prohibited titles or designations likely to be confused with "CPA" or "PA". It is not a violation of this clause for an individual on whom has been conferred, by the Internal Revenue Service, the title enrolled agent to use that title or the abbreviation "EA".

8.5 No person, sole proprietorship, partnership, or corporation, or any other entity authorized under Delaware law or a similar statute of another state shall use a title, certification or specialized designation that includes the word "accredited" or "certified" or an abbreviation of such a title, certification or designation or otherwise claim a qualification unless that designation has been conferred by a bona fide organization after evaluation of the individual's credentials and competencies. This includes such certifications and designations as “Certified Financial Planner™", "CFP", "CVA", "ABV", etc.

10.0 Firm Permits to Practice

10.1 Definitions

10.1.1 “Firm” means a sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation or any other entity authorized under Delaware law or a similar statute of another state.

10.1.2 The term “principal of a firm” is defined as any individual who has an equity interest in the firm.

10.2 Each firm which intends to be or is engaged in the practice of certified public accountancy or the practice of public accountancy in this State shall be required to obtain and maintain a valid permit to practice. Individuals not currently practicing certified public accountancy or public accountancy shall not be required to obtain a firm permit to practice until such time as that person begins to perform certified public accounting or public accounting services in this State or for clients located in this State.

10.3 Each applicant for issuance or renewal of a firm permit to practice certified public accountancy shall be required to show that: 1) each principal who performs services in this State, who performs services for a client(s) located in this State, or who is responsible for the accounting work in this State, holds a valid Delaware individual permit to practice certified public accountancy; and 2) each employee holding a certificate who performs services in this State or who performs services for a client(s) located in this State, except for employees who have not as yet accumulated sufficient experience to qualify for a permit under 24 Del.C. §107, holds a valid Delaware individual permit to practice certified public accountancy. For purposes of 24 Del.C. §111 and this Section of the Rules and Regulations, employees of a firm with its principal offices outside of Delaware that work in excess of eighty (80) hours in this State or who work for a client(s) in this State must have an individual permit to practice.

10.4 Each applicant for issuance or renewal of a firm permit to practice public accountancy shall be required to show that: 1) each principal who performs services in this State, who performs services for a client(s) located in this State, or who is responsible for the accounting work in this State, holds a valid Delaware individual permit to practice public accountancy; and 2) each employee holding a certificate who performs services in this State or who performs services for a client(s) located in this State, except for employees who have not yet met the requirements to qualify for a permit under 24 Del.C. §110, holds a valid individual permit to practice public accountancy. For purposes of 24 Del.C. §111 and this Section of the Rules and Regulations, employees of a firm with its principal offices outside of Delaware that work in excess of eighty (80) hours in this State or who work for a client(s) in this State must have a valid Delaware individual permit to practice.

10.5 An applicant for issuance or renewal of a firm permit to practice certified public accountancy or public accountancy shall be required to register each office of the firm within this State with the Board, and to show that each such office is under the charge of a person holding a valid Delaware permit to practice.

10.6 Each holder of or applicant for a firm permit to practice certified public accountancy or public accountancy shall notify the Board in writing within thirty (30) days after its occurrence of: 1) any change in the identities of principals who work regularly within this State; 2) any change in the number or location of offices within this State; 3) any change in the identity of the persons supervising such offices; and 4) any issuance, denial, revocation or suspension of a permit issued by any other State to the firm or to any principal or employee regulated by the Board.

10.7 Certified public accounting and public accounting firms practicing as corporations organized pursuant to Delaware law must be organized in compliance with The Professional Service Corporation Act, 8 Del.C. §601, et. seq.

10.8 All firms and accountants practicing in firms shall be bound by professional responsibility standards no less stringent than those stated in 8 Del.C. §608. Each applicant for issuance or renewal of a firm permit to practice certified public accountancy or public accountancy shall be required to cause a duly authorized individual to verify under oath that upon issuance by the Board of a firm permit to practice, the firm will be bound by professional standards no less stringent than those stated in 8 Del.C. §608.

10.9 Certified public accounting and public accounting firms may not practice using firms names that are misleading as to organization, scope, or quality of services provided.

In-depth Analysis

Firm Names

Every business organization or sole proprietor that performs attest services, or uses the terms “certified public accountant” or “public accountant” or any abbreviation for such terms, or holds out to the public as being engaged in the practice of public accounting, is required to be registered as a public accounting firm with the Board of Accountancy.

False and misleading firm names. The fundamental principle that public accounting firms must keep in mind when considering a firm name relates to the rule that prohibits false and misleading firm names. Firm names that seem to comply with other provisions of the rules must finally be tested by asking the question “Is this name false or misleading to the public?”
Plural firm names. Public accounting firms that have the names of more than one licensed accountant in the firm name must have an equal number of licensed accountants in the firm. Firms that use a plural title or designation, such as “company”, “associates” or “accountants”, must employ at least one licensed person who works at least 20 hours per week in addition to the number of licensees who are named in the title of the firm.

Retired or deceased names. A public accounting firm may continue to include the names of one or more past partners, shareholders, owners or members in the firm name, so long as the firm name is not false or misleading to the public.

11.0 Continuing Education

11.1 Hours Required: Each permit holder must have completed at least 80 hours of acceptable continuing professional education each biennial reporting period of each year ending with an odd number. The eighty hours of acceptable continuing professional education submitted must have been completed in the immediately preceding two-year period and must include a minimum of sixteen (16) credit hours in accounting and/or auditing and a minimum of sixteen (16) credit hours in taxation and four (4) credit hours in a Delaware specific ethics course approved by the Board as set forth in 11.8.

11.2 Reporting Requirements: Beginning in 2006, license renewal may be accomplished online at www.dpr.delaware.gov. Proof of continuing education is satisfied with an attestation by the license that he or she has satisfied the continuing education requirements of section 11.0.

11.8 Composition of Continuing Professional Education: The biennial continuing professional education requirement shall include a minimum of sixteen (16) credit hours in accounting and/or auditing and a minimum of sixteen (16) credit hours in taxation and four (4) credit hours in a Delaware specific ethics course approved by the Board. The remaining forty-four (44) credit hours may be satisfied by general subject matters so long as they contribute to the professional competence of the individual practitioner. Such general subject matters include, but are not limited to, the following areas:

- Accounting
- Administrative Practice
- Auditing
- Business Law
- Communication Arts
- Computer Science
- Economics
- Finance, Production and Marketing
- Management Services
- Mathematics, Statistics, Probability, and Quantitative Applications in Business
- Personnel Relations, Business Management and Organization
- Social Environment of Business
- Specialized Areas of Industry
- Taxation

Delaware Specific Information 3-14
13.0 Excepted Practices; Working Papers

13.1 Excepted Practices: The offering or rendering of data processing services by mechanical or electronic means is not prohibited by 24 Del.C. §120. However, the exception applies only to the processing of accounting data as furnished by the client and does not include the classification or verification of such accounting data or the analysis of the resulting financial statement by other than mechanical or electronic equipment not prohibited by this Section. The rendering of advice or assistance in regard to accounting controls, systems and procedures is exempt only as it pertains to the specific equipment or data processing service being offered. The exemption does not cover study and/or advice regarding accounting controls, systems and procedures in general. Persons, partnerships or corporations offering or performing data processing services or services connected with mechanical or electronic equipment are subject to all provisions of 24 Del.C. Ch. 1.

13.2 Working Papers: For purposes of 24 Del.C. §120, the term “working papers” does not properly include client records. In some instances, a permit holder’s working papers may include data which should be part of the client’s books and records, rendering the client’s books and records incomplete. In such instances, that portion of the working papers containing such data constitutes part of the client’s records and should be made available to the client upon request.

Client records and working papers
Requested records

In 2007, Green decided to close her public accounting office and accept a position in private industry. Green notified clients that she was closing her office and referred clients to another Certified Public Accountant.

Client “A” received the notification from Green. In 2009, Client “A” needed a copy of her depreciation schedule to complete 2007 and 2008 tax returns. Client “A” left telephone messages for Green. Green did not return Client’s calls and did not provide Client with a copy of the requested depreciation schedule.

Green was required to retain client working papers and provide Client “A” with a copy of the depreciation schedule.

POSSIBLE BOARD ACTION: Violation of 13.2 Working Papers.

14.0 Hearings

14.1 Disciplinary proceedings against any certificate or permit holder may be initiated by an aggrieved person by submitting a complaint in writing to the Director of the Division of Professional Regulation as specified in 29 Del.C. §8807(h)(1)-(3).

14.2 General procedure

14.2.1 The Board may administer oaths, take testimony, hear proofs and receive exhibits into evidence at any hearing. All testimony at any hearing shall be under oath.
14.2.2 Strict rules of evidence shall not apply. All evidence having probative value commonly accepted by reasonably prudent people in the conduct of their affairs shall be admitted.

14.2.3 An attorney representing a party in a hearing or matter before the Board shall notify the Board of the representation in writing as soon as practical.

14.2.4 Requests for postponements of any matter scheduled before the Board shall be submitted to the Board's office in writing at least three (3) days before the date scheduled for the hearing. Absent a showing of exceptional hardship, there shall be a maximum of one postponement allowed to each party to any hearing.

15.0 Voluntary Treatment Option for Chemically Dependent or Impaired Professionals

15.4 A regulated professional with chemical dependency or impairment due to addiction to drugs or alcohol may enter into the Voluntary Treatment Option and continue to practice, subject to any limitations on practice the participating Board chairperson or that chairperson's designate or designates or the Director of the Division of Professional Regulation or his/her designate may, in consultation with the treating professional, deem necessary, only if such action will not endanger the public health, welfare or safety, and the regulated professional enters into an agreement with the Director of Professional Regulation or his/her designate and the chairperson of the participating Board or that chairperson's designate for a treatment plan and progresses satisfactorily in such treatment program and complies with all terms of that agreement. Treatment programs may be operated by professional Committees and Associations or other similar professional groups with the approval of the Director of Professional Regulation and the chairperson of the participating Board.

Note: The purpose of the voluntary treatment option is to allow CPAs to get treated without losing their practice rights.

16.0 Crimes Substantially Related to the Practice of Accountancy:

16.1 Conviction of any of the following crimes, or of the attempt to commit or of a conspiracy to commit or conceal or of solicitation to commit any of the following crimes, is deemed to be substantially related to the practice of accountancy in the State of Delaware without regard to the place of conviction:

Note: The entire list of over 150 crimes is beyond the scope of this course but is available on the Board’s website. The list includes most felonies and many white-collar crimes. It is important you recognize that many things that you do in your personal life can have a severe impact on your professional life.

16.2 Crimes substantially related to the practice of accountancy shall be deemed to include any crimes under any federal law, state law, or valid town, city or county ordinance, that are substantially similar to the crimes identified in this rule.

Competence and Technical Standards

Brown prepared Client’s 2009 tax returns and calculated that Client would receive a $6,000 tax refund from Arizona, owe $7,000 in taxes to Delaware, and owe $6,500 in taxes to Internal Revenue Service. Client took tax information to another Certified Public Accountant who completed the returns and made the following determination: Client would receive a $10,000 refund from Arizona, owe $6,000 to Delaware, and owe $5,500 to IRS.

Brown agreed that he did not prepare Client’s tax return correctly.

Case Study
Professional Misconduct

White, CPA prepared Smith’s 2008 tax return. White offered client “Extended Tax Service” (ETS) for a fee. White explained to Smith that ETS is a guarantee to represent Smith at no additional cost if a taxing authority selected Smith’s tax return for audit.

White required that clients who purchased ETS must be continuing clients to receive the benefits of ETS. White published the terms of ETS once a year in his December newsletter.

The continuing client requirement was not printed on Smith’s invoice. White did not give Smith a verbal explanation of the continuing client requirement. Smith did not read White’s December newsletter.

Smith paid White for ETS when she picked up her 2008 tax return. Smith knew at the time that she paid for ETS that she would not use White’s services again.

Smith’s 2008 tax return was selected for audit. White refused to represent Smith, because Smith was not a continuing client.

White was obligated under the terms stated on Smith’s invoice to provide ETS.

According to the Department of Labor, most SIMPLE IRA plans are also subject to Title I of ERISA. Under Department of Labor regulations at 29 CFR 2510.3-102, salary reduction contributions to these plans must be made to the SIMPLE IRA as of the earliest date on which the contributions can reasonably be segregated from the employer’s general assets, but in no event later than the 30 day deadline.

CPA firm was required to make contributions to the financial institution that managed the CPA firm’s employee SIMPLE IRA Plan no later than the close of the 30 day period following the last day of the month in which amounts would otherwise have been payable to the employee in cash. CPA firm informed employees that SIMPLE IRA funds would not be deposited on the date required. For a period of two years, CPA firm did not make timely contributions to the financial institution managing the SIMPLE IRA Plan. When CPA firm deposited the funds, CPA firm also deposited interest into each employee’s SIMPLE IRA Plan.

Lack of Knowledge or Ability to Apply Principles or Skills

In 2000, CPA invited eight (8) clients to attend a meeting to consider an investment offered by Attorney. Attorney did not disclose to investors that the investments offered by Attorney were unregistered securities. CPA did not independently investigate the offerings by Attorney, but instead relied upon representations made by Attorney.

CPA also learned about investments in a tax shelter described as FDO. This tax shelter is also referred to as “Son of Boss.” CPA described the tax shelter to three of his clients, who decided to invest in the FDO. CPA assisted the three clients in investing in the FDO by referring them to a securities broker, and by preparing tax returns to report the FDO.

Five days before CPA described the FDO tax shelter to the three clients, Internal Revenue Service (IRS) issued Notice 2000-44 describing certain tax shelters that IRS deemed to be abusive. The FDO met the description of an abusive tax shelter under IRS Notice 2000-44. CPA did not inform the three clients of IRS Notice 2000-44.

POSSIBLE BOARD ACTION: Violation of AICPA Rule 201 – Professional Competence; Violation of AICPA Rule 102 – Integrity and Objectivity, for assisting in the promotion or sale of unregistered securities to eight clients.

Holding Out As A CPA

While lapsed, CPA submitted a Reinstatement Application to the Board. The application listed an e-mail address that included the CPA designation as part of the e-mail address, as follows:

JaneBrownCPA@internetprovider.com

POSSIBLE BOARD ACTION: Violation of AICPA Rule 501 – Acts Discreditable.

Dishonesty – Integrity and Objectivity

CPA, Director of Finance for a publicly-owned company, made journal entries to adjust second and third quarter 2009 financial statements according to a model developed and used by the company. When CPA made the adjustments to the second and third quarter financial statements, CPA did not report to senior management or to the external auditors that the adjustments could result in a misstatement of the financial statements. CPA reported the unsupported journal entries on the fourth quarter financial statements.

CPA made journal entries that were not in compliance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP). CPA did not discharge the duty owed to the general public when CPA allowed incorrect second and third quarter financial statements to be issued.

POSSIBLE BOARD ACTION: Violation of AICPA Rule 201 – General Standards; Violation of AICPA Rule 102 – Integrity and Objectivity.

Case Study

Dishonesty Fraud

While employed by CPA firm, CPA prepared 17 income tax returns for clients who were not clients of the CPA firm. CPA used the employer’s tax return preparation software and computer equipment to prepare these tax returns. CPA did not remove the employer’s name from the paid preparer section of the tax returns prior to issuing these tax returns to clients. CPA billed the clients using invoices with CPA’s name only and kept the fees received for these services.

CPA believed that these clients knew the CPA firm was not responsible for the tax returns even though the employer’s name was displayed in the paid preparer section of the tax return.

Public Communications and Advertising

Smith CPA LLC circulated an advertisement in a local newspaper that stated the following:

"Professional Service Warranty which guarantees you the largest refund possible with the lowest tax liability."

The advertisement guaranteed the reader the largest refund possible with the lowest tax liability. The advertisement did not state or explain how the services could be verified to provide the largest refund or the lowest tax liability.

POSSIBLE BOARD ACTION: Violation of AICPA Rule 502 – Advertising and Other Forms of Solicitation.
CHAPTER 3 – REVIEW QUESTIONS

The following questions are designed to ensure that you have a complete understanding of the information presented in the chapter. They do not need to be submitted in order to receive CPE credit. They are included as an additional tool to enhance your learning experience.

We recommend that you answer each review question and then compare your response to the suggested solution before answering the final exam questions related to this chapter.

1. Which of the following is the primary purpose of the Board of Accountancy:
   a) promoting the CPA profession
   b) protecting the general public
   c) setting minimum competency standards
   d) collecting CPA permit fees

2. Which of the following is true regarding the AICPA’s Code of Professional Ethics and Delaware CPAs:
   a) AICPA rules are voluntary guidelines
   b) AICPA ethics rules need not be followed by non AICPA members
   c) the AICPA does not have a Code of Professional Ethics
   d) a Delaware CPA must comply with the AICPA Code of Professional Ethics

Use the following fact pattern for the next 4 questions.

Jim Doe, CPA (Doe) prepares tax returns for a large number of clients. Doe has prepared the Form 1040 and Schedule C for Joe Plumber for the last ten years. Joe Plumber (Plumber) keeps no business records except for a profit/loss summary that Plumber’s wife prepares using Quicken. Doe has always calculated depreciation and made all other tax related adjustments to Plumber’s Quicken report to prepare Plumber’s Form 1040. Plumber provides all the necessary documents to Doe and asks Doe to prepare Plumber’s current year tax return. Doe prepares Plumber’s current year tax return even though Plumber still owes Doe fees for preparing last year’s tax return as well as year-end tax planning. Doe does not use any type of client engagement letter since he only prepares tax returns.

3. Assume that Doe demands payment of all past due fees as well as payment for the current year tax return preparation prior to releasing the tax return to Plumber. Which of the following is true regarding releasing the current year tax return to Plumber:
   a) Doe may withhold releasing the current year tax return until all current and past due fees are paid
   b) Doe may withhold releasing the current year tax return pending the payment of past due fees but may not demand payment of current year fees prior to issuing the tax return
   c) Doe must release the current year tax return regardless of the status of unpaid fees
   d) neither the Board of Accountancy nor the AICPA have any rules relating to releasing client records
4. Plumber refuses to pay any of the current or past due fees and demands a copy of all of Doe’s workpapers as well as the return of all documents provided to Doe. Which of the following is true:

a) Doe need not return any client records nor supply copies of any workpapers
b) Doe must return any client supplied records but need not provide copies of any workpapers

c) Doe must return any client supplied records and prior year depreciation records that are in Doe’s prior year workpapers but not contained in prior year tax return

5. Plumber decides to prepare his current year tax return himself. Plumber does not have a copy of his prior year tax return, and a copy is not available from the IRS. Plumber was due a small refund and never filed his prior year tax return and subsequently lost his copy. Plumber demands that Doe provide a copy of Plumber’s prior year tax return and the depreciation workpapers for the current year that Doe prepared for Plumber’s current year tax return. Which of the following is true:

a) Doe must provide Plumber a copy of the prior year tax return and the current year depreciation workpapers

b) Doe must provide Plumber a copy of the prior year tax return but not the current year depreciation workpapers

6. At this point, both Doe and Plumber have spent numerous unproductive hours arguing over client records, releasing tax returns, and collecting payment. Plumber has threatened to file a complaint against Doe with the Board of Accountancy. Doe has looked into filing a lawsuit in Small Claims Court against Plumber. What could Doe and Plumber have done to avoid this mess:

a) nothing; problems like this occur in business and are simply a fact of life

b) use an engagement letter

c) communicated with each other before the problem arose

d) both b and c would have helped
CHAPTER 3 – SOLUTIONS AND SUGGESTED RESPONSES

1. A: Incorrect. The CPA societies try to promote the profession.

   B: Correct. A secondary objective is to set competency standards.

   C: Incorrect. Setting competency standards is a secondary purpose.

   D: Incorrect. All fees collected are used in the regulation of the profession.

   (See Section 101 in the course material.)

   B: Incorrect. Delaware CPAs must comply with AICPA standards.

   C: Incorrect. Delaware CPAs must comply with AICPA standards.

   (See Reg. 2.0 in the course material.)

3. A: Correct. Prior to being released, the completed tax return is considered to be part of the CPA’s workpapers and is the property of the CPA. Accordingly, the tax return need not be released to the client. The CPA may set the terms for releasing the tax return. Such terms may include receiving payment for some or all fees. A completed tax return is not considered to be client records until released to the client.

   B: Incorrect. Prior to being released, the completed tax return is considered to be part of the CPA’s workpapers and is the property of the CPA. Accordingly, the tax return need not be released to the client. The CPA may set the terms for releasing the tax return. Such terms may include receiving payment for some or all fees. The client has no right to pay only a portion of the fees and demand release of the tax return.

   C: Incorrect. Prior to being released, the completed tax return is considered to be part of the CPA’s workpapers and is the property of the CPA. Accordingly, the tax return need not be released to the client. The CPA may set the terms for releasing the tax return. Such terms may include receiving payment for some or all fees. The client has no right to demand the release of the return prior to paying fees as required by the CPA.

   D: Incorrect. Both the Board of Accountancy and the AICPA have extensive rules relating to CPA workpapers and the return of client records. In fact, failure to return client records is one of the most common complaints received by the Board of Accountancy.

   (See Title 24 Section 120 and Rule 13.0 in the course material.)
4. A: Incorrect. Section 120 requires the return of all client records upon request. See section 120.

B: Incorrect. Section 120 requires the return of all client records upon request. In addition, the permit holder must provide a copy of the working papers to the extent that such working papers include records that would ordinarily constitute part of the client’s records and are not otherwise available to the client.

C: Correct. Section 120 requires the return of all client records upon request. In addition, the permit holder must provide a copy of the working papers to the extent that such working papers include records that would ordinarily constitute part of the client’s records and are not otherwise available to the client. The depreciation records are part of Doe’s workpapers but are also considered part of the client’s records and must be made available to the client. Doe has no obligation to provide access to any workpapers that are not considered client records.

5. A: Incorrect. The prior year tax return has already been issued and therefore must be provided upon request. Doe may require payment of a reasonable charge for copying the return but may not hold the return hostage pending payment of other outstanding fees. The current year depreciation is considered to be part of Doe’s work product and is the property of Doe. Since the current year tax return was never provided to Plumber, the depreciation records are not considered client records and Doe need not release them.

B: Correct. The prior year tax return has already been issued and therefore must be provided upon request. Doe may require payment of a reasonable charge for copying the return but may not hold the return hostage pending payment of other outstanding fees. The current year depreciation schedule is considered to be part of Doe’s work product and is the property of Doe. Since the current year tax return was never provided to Plumber, the depreciation records are not considered client records and Doe need not release them.

C: Incorrect. The current year depreciation is considered to be part of Doe’s work product and is the property of Doe. Since the current year tax return was never provided to Plumber, the depreciation records are not considered client records and Doe need not release them. The prior year tax return has already been issued and therefore must be provided upon request. Doe may require payment of a reasonable charge for copying the return but may not hold the return hostage pending payment of other outstanding fees.
D: Incorrect. The prior year tax return has already been issued and therefore must be provided upon request. Doe may require payment of a reasonable charge for copying the return but may not hold the return hostage pending payment of other outstanding fees. The current year depreciation schedule is considered to be part of Doe’s work product and is the property of Doe. Since the current year tax return was never provided to Plumber, the depreciation records are not considered client records and Doe need not release them.

6. A: Incorrect. Problems like this do occur, but they are not unavoidable. A good engagement letter would have specified when payment was due and otherwise specified the expectations and obligations of both CPA and client. Also, good communication goes a long way in avoiding problems.

B: Incorrect. Although this is true, it is not the best answer. A good engagement letter would have specified when payment was due and otherwise specified the expectations and obligations of both the CPA and client. The fact that Doe’s practice is limited to preparing tax returns is not an excuse for not using an engagement letter. Although sending out a separate engagement letter might seem awkward, Doe could incorporate it into the annual client organizer that Doe sends out to clients.

C: Incorrect. Although this is true, it is not the best answer. Good communication goes a long way in avoiding problems. Plumber could have disclosed the fact that his gambling problem has left him broke but that he no longer gambles and hopes to begin making payments to Doe and the many others that Plumber owes debts to.

D: Correct. Using an engagement letter along with effective communication could have avoided this problem. A good engagement letter would have specified when payment was due and otherwise specified the expectations and obligations of both CPA and client. By communicating that a gambling problem had left him broke but that he no longer gambles and hopes to begin making payments to Doe, Plumber could have avoided this mess. Likewise, if Doe had communicated his displeasure in not receiving payment from Plumber instead of holding the tax return hostage, Doe might have avoided this mess, helped a client, collected some of the past due debt, and saved valuable billable hours.

(See Section 120 in the course material.)
CHAPTER 4: STATEMENTS ON STANDARDS FOR TAX SERVICES

Objectives: After completing this chapter, you will be able to:

- Discuss the applicable AICPA guidance on tax practice.
- Apply the AICPA standards and the IRS rules to common ethical dilemmas faced by CPAs in tax practice.

In all tax return engagements, and especially those gray areas which challenge the CPA’s judgment and integrity, the CPA has an ethical obligation to look at the AICPA’s Statements on Standards for Tax Services (SSTSs). The SSTSs are intended to establish standards for tax practice and to define the CPA’s responsibility to the client, the public, the Government and the accounting profession. The SSTSs are informative in nature. Prior to October 31, 2000 tax guidance was limited to the AICPA’s Statements on Responsibilities in Tax Practice (SRTPs). The SRTPs and the new SSTSs are generally the same except the previously voluntary standards are now enforceable. In the past, many CPAs have stated that since they are not members of the AICPA, the SSTSs have no meaning to them. This is simply not true! The SSTSs increase the value of the CPA designation by setting CPAs apart from unscrupulous individuals who abuse the tax system. One good example is the recent IRS crackdown on fraud in the electronic filing of tax returns. The IRS now requires participants to submit a full set of fingerprints and consent to a background search. CPAs, because of their integrity and high ethical standards, are exempt from this burden. Practice standards are the hallmark of calling one’s self a professional.

Another reason for understanding and adhering to the SSTSs is that the public demands it. The SSTSs are often referred to by plaintiffs’ attorneys in prosecuting a tax malpractice case. Accordingly, adhering to these standards can help you avoid the courtroom and could result in discounts on your malpractice insurance premiums. The SSTSs are reproduced here for your education and convenience.

SSTS-1 Tax Return Positions

SSTS-1 describes the overall standard that a CPA should use when doing tax planning and when preparing tax returns. SSTS-1 is very similar to the crux of Circular 230. It is referred to as the “Realistic Possibility Standard”.

SSTS-1

I. With respect to the tax return positions, a CPA should comply with the following standards:

a. A CPA should not recommend a tax return position or prepare or sign a tax return taking a position unless the CPA has a good-faith belief that the position has at least a realistic possibility of being sustained administratively or judicially on its merits if challenged.

b. Notwithstanding paragraph a, a CPA may recommend a tax return position if the CPA: 1) concludes that there is a reasonable basis for the position, and 2) advises the taxpayer to appropriately disclose that position. Notwithstanding paragraph a, a member may prepare or sign a tax return that reflects a position if: 1) the member concludes there is a reasonable basis for the position, and 2) the position is appropriately disclosed.
II. The CPA should not recommend a tax return position that:
   a. Exploits the audit selection process; or
   b. Serves as a mere “arguing” position advanced solely to obtain leverage in negotiation with a taxing authority.

III. A CPA has both the right and responsibility to be an advocate for the client with respect to any positions satisfying the aforementioned standards.

How to Apply SSTS-1 to Your Tax Practice

I. Our self-assessment tax system will function only if taxpayers file returns that are true, correct and complete. A tax return is primarily a taxpayer’s statement of facts. Accordingly, the taxpayer has the final responsibility for all omissions and misstatements.

II. CPAs in tax practice have a duty to the tax system as well as to their clients. However, taxpayers have no obligation to pay more taxes than their lowest legal tax. The CPA’s highest duty is to the client in assisting the client achieve the lowest legal tax.

III. The standards require that a CPA in good faith believe that either:
   a. The position is warranted in existing law, or;
   b. Can be supported by a good faith argument for an extension, modification or reversal of existing law.

The CPA may reasonably reach the conclusion that a position is warranted based on:

   a. IRS general counsel memoranda
   b. Private letter rulings
   c. Treaties
   d. A general explanation of a tax act prepared by the joint committee on taxation.

The above sources meet this standard even if they do not meet the Section 6661 test of “authority.” All that is required to meet this standard is a good faith belief that the standard is met when the return is filed.

IV. When a CPA believes that two or more positions meet the standards above, the CPA may discuss with the client:

   a. A relative likelihood that the different positions could cause the client’s tax return to be examined;
   b. The relative likelihood that any position would be challenged in an audit.
V. What if the position the client wants to use could result in a taxpayer penalty?

The CPA should do the following:

a. Discuss with the client the possibility that a penalty could be assessed.
b. Advise the client that penalties are cumulative and are in addition to interest.
c. Discuss the benefits of voluntary disclosure of the position on the tax return. Inform the client that voluntary disclosure could mitigate the likelihood of penalties being imposed. The client should also be advised that disclosure would reduce the chances of the statute of limitations being extended from three years to six years.

Examples Under SST-1 Interpretation A-2

The following examples deal with general fact patterns. Accordingly, the application of the guidance discussed in the General Interpretation section to variations in such general facts or to particular facts or circumstances may lead to different conclusions. In each illustration there is no authority other than that indicated.

Example 1. A taxpayer has engaged in a transaction that is adversely affected by a new statutory provision. Prior law supports a position favorable to the taxpayer. The taxpayer believes, and the member concurs, that the new statute is inequitable as applied to the taxpayer’s situation. The statute is constitutional, clearly drafted, and unambiguous. The legislative history discussing the new statute contains general comments that do not specifically address the taxpayer’s situation.

Conclusion. The member should recommend the return position supported by the new statute. A position contrary to a constitutional, clear, and unambiguous statute would ordinarily be considered a frivolous position.

Example 2. The facts are the same as in Example 1 except that the legislative history discussing the new statute specifically addresses the taxpayer’s situation and supports a position favorable to the taxpayer.

Conclusion. In a case where the statute is clearly and unambiguously against the taxpayer’s position but a contrary position exists based on legislative history specifically addressing the taxpayer’s situation, a return position based either on the statutory language or on the legislative history satisfies the realistic possibility standard.
Example 3. The facts are the same as in Example 1 except that the legislative history can be interpreted to provide some evidence or authority in support of the taxpayer’s position; however, the legislative history does not specifically address the situation.

Conclusion. In a case where the statute is clear and unambiguous, a contrary position based on an interpretation of the legislative history that does not explicitly address the taxpayer’s situation does not meet the realistic possibility standard. However, because the legislative history provides some support or evidence for the taxpayer’s position, such a return position is not frivolous. A member may recommend the position to the taxpayer if the member also recommends appropriate disclosure.

Example 4. A taxpayer is faced with an issue involving the interpretation of a new statute. Following its passage, the statute was widely recognized to contain a drafting error, and a technical correction proposal has been introduced. The taxing authority issues a pronouncement indicating how it will administer the provision. The pronouncement interprets the statute in accordance with the proposed technical correction.

Conclusion. Return positions based on either the existing statutory language or the taxing authority pronouncement satisfy the realistic possibility standard.

Example 5. The facts are the same as in illustration 4 except that no taxing authority pronouncement has been issued.

Conclusion. In the absence of a taxing authority pronouncement interpreting the statute in accordance with the technical correction, only a return position based on the existing statutory language will meet the realistic possibility standard. A return position based on the proposed correction may be recommended if it is appropriately disclosed, since it is not frivolous.

Example 6. A taxpayer is seeking advice from a member regarding a recently amended statute. The member has reviewed the statute, the legislative history that specifically addresses the issue, and a recently published notice issued by the taxing authority. The member has concluded in good faith that, based on the statute and the legislative history, the taxing authority’s position as stated in the notice does not reflect legislative intent.

Conclusion. The member may recommend the position supported by the statute and the legislative history because it meets the realistic possibility standard.
Example 7. The facts are the same as in Example 6 except that the taxing authority pronouncement is a temporary regulation.

Conclusion. In determining whether the position meets the realistic possibility standard, a member should determine the weight to be given the regulation by analyzing factors such as whether the regulation is legislative or interpretative, or if it is inconsistent with the statute. If a member concludes that the position does not meet the realistic possibility standard, because it is not frivolous, the position may nevertheless be recommended if the member also recommends appropriate disclosure.

Example 8. A tax form published by a taxing authority is incorrect, but completion of the form as published provides a benefit to the taxpayer. The member knows that the taxing authority has published an announcement acknowledging the error.

Conclusion. In these circumstances, a return position in accordance with the published form is a frivolous position.

Example 9. A taxpayer wants to take a position that a member has concluded is frivolous. The taxpayer maintains that even if the taxing authority examines the return, the issue will not be raised.

Conclusion. The member should not consider the likelihood of audit or detection when determining whether the realistic possibility standard has been met. The member should not prepare or sign a return that contains a frivolous position even if it is disclosed.

Example 10. A statute is passed requiring the capitalization of certain expenditures. The taxpayer believes, and the member concurs, that to comply fully, the taxpayer will need to acquire new computer hardware and software and implement a number of new accounting procedures. The taxpayer and member agree that the costs of full compliance will be significantly greater than the resulting increase in tax due under the new provision. Because of these cost considerations, the taxpayer makes no effort to comply. The taxpayer wants the member to prepare and sign a return on which the new requirement is simply ignored.

Conclusion. The return position desired by the taxpayer is frivolous, and the member should neither prepare nor sign the return.

Example 11. The facts are the same as in Example 10 except that a taxpayer has made a good-faith effort to comply with the law by calculating an estimate of expenditures to be capitalized under the new provision.
Conclusion. In this situation, the realistic possibility standard has been met. When using estimates in the preparation of a return, a member should refer to SST No. 4, Use of Estimates.

Example 12. On a given issue, a member has located and weighed two authorities concerning the treatment of a particular expenditure. A taxing authority has issued an administrative ruling that required the expenditure to be capitalized and amortized over several years. On the other hand, a court opinion permitted the current deduction of the expenditure. The member has concluded that these are the relevant authorities, considered the source of both authorities, and concluded that both are persuasive and relevant.

Conclusion. The realistic possibility standard is met by either position.

Example 13. A tax statute is silent on the treatment of an item under the statute. However, the legislative history explaining the statute directs the taxing authority to issue regulations that will require a specific treatment of the item. No regulations have been issued at the time the member must recommend a position on the tax treatment of the item.

Conclusion. The member may recommend the position supported by the legislative history because it meets the realistic possibility standard.

Example 14. A taxpayer wants to take a position that a member concludes meets the realistic possibility standard based on an assumption regarding an underlying nontax legal issue. The member recommends that the taxpayer seek advice from its legal counsel, and the taxpayer’s attorney gives an opinion on the nontax legal issue.

Conclusion. A member may in general rely on a legal opinion on a nontax legal issue. A member should, however, use professional judgment when relying on a legal opinion. If, on its face, the opinion of the taxpayer’s attorney appears to be unreasonable, unsubstantiated, or unwarranted, a member should consult his or her attorney before relying on the opinion.

Example 15. A taxpayer has obtained from its attorney an opinion on the tax treatment of an item and requests that a member rely on the opinion.

Conclusion. The authorities on which a member may rely include well-reasoned sources of tax analysis. If a member is satisfied about the source, relevance, and persuasiveness of the legal opinion, a member may rely on that opinion when determining whether the realistic possibility standard has been met.
SSTS-2 Answers to Questions on Returns

SSTS-2 outlines when a CPA may sign a client’s tax return as a paid preparer when one or more questions on the return have been left blank. The term “questions” means “requests for information on the return, in the instructions, or in the regulations whether or not stated in the form of a question.”

SSTS-2

A preparer should make a reasonable effort to obtain from the client, and provide, appropriate answers to all questions on a tax return before signing as a preparer.

Questions on tax returns are not of uniform importance and often are not applicable to a particular taxpayer. A preparer must make a reasonable effort to obtain all of the requested information. The AICPA gives three reasons for the CPA to want to comply:

a. “The question may be of importance in determining taxable income or loss, or the tax liability shown on the return.”
b. A request for information may require a disclosure necessary for a complete return or to avoid penalties.
c. “The CPA must sign the preparer’s declaration stating that the return is true, correct and complete.”

Nevertheless, reasonable grounds may exist for omitting an answer. The AICPA gives several examples of when a question may be omitted:

a. “The information is not readily available and the answer is not significant in terms of taxable income or loss, or the tax liability shown on the return.”
b. “Genuine uncertainty exists regarding the meaning of the question in relation to the particular return.”
c. “The answer to the question is voluminous; in such cases, assurance should be given on the return that the data will be supplied upon examination.”

When reasonable grounds exist for omitting an answer, the CPA is not required to state on the return the reason for the omission. However, the CPA must “consider whether the omission may cause the return to be deemed incomplete or result in penalties.”

The mere fact that an answer to a question may be detrimental to the client (e.g. triggering an audit) does not justify omitting an answer.

SSTS-3 Certain Procedural Aspects of Preparing Returns

SSTS-3 outlines the “responsibility of the preparer to examine or verify certain supporting data or to consider information related to another client when preparing a client’s tax return.” In other words, does the information pass the CPA reasonableness test?

SSTS-3

I. In preparing or signing a return, the CPA may in good faith rely without verification upon information furnished by the client or by third parties. However, the CPA should not ignore the implications of information furnished and should make reasonable inquiries if the information furnished appears to be incorrect, incomplete, or inconsistent either on its face or on the basis of other facts known to the CPA. In this connection, the CPA should refer to the client’s returns for prior years whenever feasible.

II. Where the Internal Revenue Code or income tax regulations impose a condition with respect to deductibility or other tax treatment of an item (such as taxpayer maintenance of books and records or substantiating documentation to support the reported deduction or tax treatment), the CPA should make appropriate inquiries to determine to his or her satisfaction whether such condition has been met.

III. The individual CPA who is required to sign the return should consider information actually known to that CPA from the tax return of another client when preparing a tax return if the information is relevant to that tax return, its consideration is necessary to properly prepare that tax return, and use of such information does not violate any law or rule relating to confidentiality.

The paid preparer must sign the declaration on the tax return that the information therein is true, correct and complete “based on all information of which the preparer has any knowledge”. This applies to information supplied by third parties to the CPA. The preparer is not required to examine or verify supporting data. A preparer may rely on client supplied data unless it appears to be incomplete, incorrect or inconsistent.

The AICPA explanation states “the CPA should encourage the client to provide supporting data where appropriate”. This allows the CPA to consider all of the relevant data when looking for additional deductions. It also allows the CPA to “tie out” information to 1099 Series information returns and avoid bothersome IRS notices in the future.

When reviewing K-1s from pass-through entities the CPA may advise the client to further investigate his dealings with the pass-through entity. However, “the CPA may accept the information provided by the pass-through entity without further inquiry unless there is reason to believe it is incorrect, incomplete, or inconsistent…”.

The AICPA recommends that CPAs make good use of prior year tax returns. By analyzing the client’s current tax situation with that reported on prior year returns, the CPA can avoid the omission or duplication of items. Reviewing prior year returns also aids in reporting similar items on a consistent basis.

From a practical standpoint this comparison is very easy. Most tax preparation programs print multi-year comparisons of tax return line items. Utilizing such a feature will not only aid your compliance with the ethical standards but will help you identify “missed deductions.”

SSTS-4 Use of Estimates

SSTS-4 details when and under what circumstances client estimates may be used in preparing tax returns. “The CPA may advise on estimates used in the preparation of a tax return, but responsibility for estimated data is that of the client”. The client should provide the estimated data. Appraisals are not considered estimates.
A CPA may prepare tax returns using the taxpayer’s estimates if it is impracticable to obtain exact data, and the estimated amounts are reasonable under the facts and circumstances known to the CPA. When the taxpayer’s estimates are used, they should be presented in such a manner as to avoid the implication of greater accuracy than exists.

Accounting requires the exercise of judgment and at times the use of approximations based on judgment. The exercise of such judgment is not considered an “estimate” for purposes of this statement. The AICPA cites, for example, year-end income and expense accruals as judgment items, not estimates.

When it is necessary to use estimates, the “estimated amounts should not be presented in a manner that provides a misleading impression as to the degree of factual accuracy.” This can be illustrated by the client who estimated his business auto mileage as 30,000 miles but says use 29,958 miles so that “it looks more accurate.”

The AICPA points out that disclosing that an estimate was used in a return is usually not required. However, there are unusual circumstances where such disclosure is needed to avoid misleading the IRS regarding the degree of accuracy of the return.

Some examples of unusual circumstances include the following:

a. The taxpayer has died or is ill at the time the return must be filed.
b. The taxpayer has not received a K-1 for a flow-through entity at the time the tax return is to be filed. Consider filing Form 8082.
c. There is litigation pending (for example, a bankruptcy proceeding) that bears on the return.
d. Fire, computer failure, or natural disaster has destroyed the relevant records.

SSTS-5

Departure from a Position Previously Concluded in an Administrative Proceeding or Court Decision

When may a CPA recommend a tax return position that departs from a court decision or IRS ruling?

SSTS-5 provides surprising guidance. Remember, SSTS-1 provides that a CPA’s primary duty is to his client.

The position to be taken concerning the tax treatment of an item in the preparation or signing of a tax return should be based upon the facts and the law as they are evaluated at the time the return is prepared or signed by the CPA. Unless the taxpayer is bound to a specified treatment in the later year, such as by a formal closing agreement, the treatment of an item as part of concluding an administrative proceeding or as part of a court decision does not restrict the CPA from recommending a different tax treatment in a later year’s return. Therefore, if the CPA follows the standards in SSTS-1, the CPA may recommend a tax return position, prepare, or sign a tax return that departs from the treatment of an item as concluded in an administrative proceeding or a court decision with respect to a prior return of the taxpayer.

The IRS as well as most CPAs strive for consistency in the treatment of similar items in different years. SSTS-5 notes that there are many valid reasons why a CPA could recommend a position that differs from that agreed to in prior years with the IRS. Perhaps the taxpayer lacked the required documentation to substantiate a deduction in the prior year. The taxpayer may have simply given in to IRS upon audit to avoid the time and expense of litigation. Also, more favorable court cases or administrative rulings may have occurred. However, the AICPA warns:

The consent in an earlier administrative proceeding and the existence of an unfavorable court decision are factors that the CPA should consider in evaluating whether the standards in SSTS-1 are met.

SSTS-6    Knowledge of Error: Return Preparation and Administrative Proceedings

SSTS-6 considers the applicable standards for a CPA who becomes aware of:

a. An error in a taxpayer’s previously filed tax return;
b. An error in a return that is under audit; or
c. A taxpayer’s failure to file a required tax return.

An error includes anything that would fail to meet the standards of SSTS-1. An error also includes a position taken on a prior year’s tax return that no longer meets SSTS-1 due to changes in legislation, judicial decisions or regulations. An error does not include immaterial items. SSTS-6 applies to errors on returns prepared by other preparers.

SSTS-6

The CPA should inform the client promptly upon becoming aware of an error in a previously filed return or upon becoming aware of client’s failure to file a required return. The CPA should recommend the corrective measures to be taken. Such recommendation may be given orally. The CPA is not obligated to inform the Internal Revenue Service, and the CPA may not do so without the client’s permission, except where required by law.

If the CPA is requested to prepare the current year’s return and the client has not taken appropriate action to correct an error in the prior year’s return, the CPA should consider whether to withdraw from preparing the return and whether to continue a professional relationship with the client. If the CPA does prepare such current year’s return, the CPA should take reasonable steps to ensure that the error is not repeated.
When the CPA discovers an error in a prior return, the AICPA advises that:

a. The CPA should advise the client of the error and the measures to be taken. It is the client’s responsibility to decide whether to correct the error.
b. In cases where the IRS could assert the charge of fraud, the CPA should advise the client to consult legal counsel.
c. The CPA should take reasonable steps to ensure that the error is not repeated.
d. If the tax return is under audit, the CPA should ask for permission to disclose the error.
e. If the CPA believes that fraud has occurred, the CPA should advise the taxpayer to consult with an attorney before taking any action.

The author believes that great care should be taken with clients who refuse to correct errors or particularly to file required returns. The simple reason is that if they are content with cheating the government, what will keep them from cheating you? Do yourself a favor and consider withdrawing from the engagement.

Former SSTS-7 Knowledge of Error: Administrative Proceedings (Deleted)

Note: Former SSTS-7 has been incorporated into SSTS-6.

SSTS-7 Form and Content of Advice to Clients (Formerly SSTS-8)

SSTS-7 details “standards concerning certain aspects of providing tax advice to a client and considers the circumstances when subsequent developments affect advice previously provided.”

SSTS-7

In providing tax advice to a client, the CPA should use professional judgment to ensure that the advice given reflects competence and appropriately serves the client’s needs. The CPA is not required to follow a standard format or guidelines in communicating written or oral advice to a client, but must comply with Circular 230 standards.

In advising or consulting with a client on tax matters, the CPA should assume that the advice will affect the manner in which the matters or transactions considered ultimately will be reported or disclosed on the client’s tax return. Thus, for all tax advice the CPA gives to a client, the CPA should follow the standards in SSTS-1 relating to tax return positions. The CPA should also consider disclosure standards and potential penalty consequences.

A CPA has no obligation to communicate with a taxpayer when subsequent developments affect advice previously provided with respect to significant matters, except while assisting a taxpayer in implementing procedures or plans associated with the advice provided or when a member undertakes this obligation by specific agreement.
Because the range of services and advice is so extensive, no uniform set of guidelines or format can be established. Written advice is generally better than oral advice. However, the CPA should use prudent judgment and common sense in deciding how to communicate advice.

SSTS-9 Quality Control

In December 2005, the AICPA proposed SSTS-9 covering quality control contemplating completion in 2009. The proposed SSTS is based on the “best practices” outlined in Circular 230, Section 10.33. The AICPA has decided not to move forward with it as an enforceable standard.

REVISIONS TO SSTSs

In 2008, the AICPA released exposure drafts of revised SSTSs. SSTS No. 6 and No. 7 were combined into a new SSTS No. 6. Various changes in federal and state laws have impacted SSTS No. 1 and No. 8. The new SSTSs with redline changes can be found at www.aicpa.org. The new standards are effective January 1, 2010, and are included in this course.

IRS SANCTIONS

The Internal Revenue Code and Regulations contain a number of provisions that impose criminal, civil, and regulatory sanctions on tax practitioners.

Of the approximately 150 penalty provisions a CPA could run afoul of, one of the most relevant is section 6694. Section 6694 provides for a penalty of $250.00 against the preparer for each return involving an understatement of tax liability due to a position taken on a return for which there is not a realistic possibility of being sustained on its merits. This penalty does not apply if the preparer acted in good faith. For a discussion of what constitutes “good faith”, see Rev. Proc. 80-40. Better yet – follow the advice in this course.
CHAPTER 4 – REVIEW QUESTIONS

The following questions are designed to ensure that you have a complete understanding of the information presented in the chapter. They do not need to be submitted in order to receive CPE credit. They are included as an additional tool to enhance your learning experience.

We recommend that you answer each review question and then compare your response to the suggested solution before answering the final exam questions related to this chapter.

1. SSTS-2 provides examples of reasonable grounds for omitting an answer on a client’s tax return. Which of the following is not one of the examples:

   a) the information is not readily available and the answer is not significant in terms of taxable income or loss, or the tax liability shown on the return
   b) genuine uncertainty exists regarding the meaning of the question in relation to the particular return
   c) the answer to the question may be detrimental to the client
   d) the answer to the question is voluminous

2. SSTS No. 4 provides guidance on the use of estimates. Which of the following is the most correct use of an estimate under SSTS-4:

   a) a client does not keep a car mileage log but believes he drove about 20,000 miles last year and that about half of the mileage is business related. He asks his CPA to report 10,086 miles as business miles so that the estimate looks more like an accurate record of the actual mileage
   b) an accrual basis taxpayer calculates accrued expenses totaling $4,280
   c) a charitable donation is supported by an appraisal which states the value of the donated items as $5,840
   d) a taxpayer held an interest-bearing account at a bank for a few months at the beginning of the year but received less than $10 of interest and did not receive a Form 1099. The taxpayer estimates based on the time period, amount in the account, and the interest rate earned that he should have received $8 in interest
CHAPTER 4 – SOLUTIONS AND SUGGESTED RESPONSES

1. A: Incorrect. This is an example of when a question may be omitted. The CPA must consider whether the omission may cause the return to be incomplete.

   B: Incorrect. The CPA is not required to state on the return the reason for the omission.

   C: Correct. For instance, the mere fact that the answer may trigger an audit is not adequate justification.

   D: Incorrect. In such cases, assurance should be given on the return that the data will be supplied upon examination.

   (See page 4-7 of the course material.)

2. A: Incorrect. Estimated amounts should not be presented in a misleading manner that implies accuracy. The taxpayer’s estimate should likely be reported as 10,000 business miles.

   B: Incorrect. Year-end income and expense accruals are considered judgment items not estimates, and may be reported as calculated.

   C: Incorrect. The reliance on an appraisal is not an estimate. Appraisals are based on the opinion and judgment of the appraiser but are not considered estimates.

   D: Correct. A client generated estimate such as this one is permitted under SSTS-4. The estimate is both reasonable and not misleading.

   (See page 4-9 of the course material.)
CHAPTER 5: ETHICS FOR INDUSTRY CPAs

Objectives: After completing this chapter, you will be able to:

- Discuss AICPA guidance for Management Accountants.
- Identify ethical guidance promulgated by the Institute of Management Accountants (IMA).
- Compare and contrast the guidance issued by IMA and the AICPA.

Introduction

Although all CPAs begin their careers in public practice, many soon migrate to positions in industry. Many will join the Institute of Management Accountants (IMA). Some of those who join the IMA will also get the Certified Management Accountant (CMA) designation. Many will retain their membership in the AICPA. Both the AICPA and IMA are voluntary member organizations – only members are required to follow their respective ethical guidelines. However, these guidelines were designed in furtherance of the CPA’s role as trusted business advisers. Accordingly, these guidelines should be followed by members and non-members alike.

AICPA GUIDANCE

Rule 102 – Integrity and objectivity has particular importance to CPAs in industry. Rule 102 is very broad in its dictate that “a member shall maintain objectivity and integrity, shall be free of conflicts of interest, and shall not knowingly misrepresent facts or subordinate his or her judgment to others.”

Following are summaries and discussion of the AICPA Rule 102 Interpretations relating to Management Accountants.

Interpretation 102-2 (Conflicts of Interest) A conflict of interest may arise when a member performs a professional service for a client or employer and has a “significant relationship” with another party. For example, the firm may provide investment advice for a client but may have a relationship with a financial product that is sold to the client. This situation is not prohibited if the client is informed of the relationship. In making the disclosure to the client the member should make sure that Rule 301 (Confidential Client Information) is not violated. The disclosure and consent option is available only for conflicts of interest. Impairments of independence cannot be so eliminated.

Interpretation 102-3 (Obligations of a Member to His or Her Employer’s External Accountant) When a member who is not in public practice communicates with his or her employer’s external accountant, the member “must be candid and not knowingly misrepresent facts or knowingly fail to disclose material facts.” This guidance applies, for example, to written representations requested by the employer’s external accountant.
Interpretation 102-4 (Subordination of Judgment by a Member) During the performance of a professional service (all services performed by a member while holding out as a CPA), a member should not subordinate his or her judgment to the position taken by a supervisor. Specifically, if there is a disagreement about the preparation of financial statements or the recording of a transaction, the member should observe the following guidelines.

- Determine whether the position taken by the supervisor is consistent with an acceptable alternative accounting principle. If the principle is generally acceptable, the member does not need to take additional action.

- If the member determines that the alternative accounting principle is not acceptable, the member should communicate the disagreement to an “appropriate higher level(s) of management with the organization.” This higher level could include the supervisor’s supervisor, members of senior management, or the audit committee.

- If, after the appropriate higher level(s) of management was informed of the disagreement, appropriate action was not taken, the member should consider whether to continue as an employee and whether there is any responsibility to notify appropriate regulatory agencies or the employer’s current or former external accountant. Consultation with legal counsel may be appropriate before communicating with external parties.

Cindy Steffen is a CPA and the controller of Company X Inc. In preparing the financial statements for the quarter ended September 30, 200X, Steffen proposes to reduce obsolete inventory to net realizable value. The obsolete items represent a significant amount of total inventory. The CFO concurs with Steffen’s position. However, he decides not to go against the CEO whose position is that reducing the inventory this quarter is a discretionary decision and the CEO would prefer to record any such reduction at year end, after Company X completes its anticipated public offering of stock later this year. What are the ethical obligations of Steffen’s in this situation?

Answer: To avoid subordinating her judgment, Steffen should first determine whether the inventory writedown is material. If so, she should restate her concerns to the CFO and CEO and, if the latter persists in not supporting the writedown, Steffen should bring the matter to the attention of the audit committee of the board of directors. She should document the understanding of the facts, the accounting principles involved, the application of the principles to the facts, and the parties with whom discussions were held. Steffen should consider any responsibility that may exist to go outside the company, although legal counsel should be sought on this matter.

The member should be aware of obligations established under Interpretation 102-3.

The AICPA has also issued one ruling of interest to CPAs in industry. When may an industry CPA use the CPA designation? The AICPA believes it is proper for the CPA to use the CPA designation provided it is not done in a manner that implies the CPA is independent of the employer.
Following are questions asked by AICPA members. The answers are from the AICPA Professional Ethics division:

1. A member is hired by a company as the chief financial officer. The member later discovers that, prior to his or her employment, material false and misleading entries were recorded in the books and records of the company. If he or she fails to record a correcting entry, is the member in violation of the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct?

Yes. Rule 102 requires that in the performance of any professional service, a member shall not knowingly misrepresent facts. Interpretation 102-1 states that a member shall have knowingly misrepresented facts if he or she knowingly fails to correct an entity’s financial statements or records that are materially false and misleading when the member has the authority to record such an entry.

2. A member is the controller of a company. The company’s external auditors request, and the member provides them with, copies of documents relating to the company’s revenue-recognition policy. However, the member does not disclose the existence of other documents that would reveal the company is improperly and prematurely recording revenue which has a material impact on the company’s financial statements. Is the member in violation of the AICPA code?

Yes. Under Interpretation 102-3, when dealing with his or her employer’s external accountant, a member must be candid and not knowingly misrepresent facts or fail to disclose material facts.

3. A supervisor instructs a member to record a transaction that would result in a material misstatement of the financial statements. If, after appropriate research and consultation, the member determines that the transaction cannot be recorded using an acceptable alternative, should he or she comply with the supervisor’s instructions?

No. Interpretation 102-4 prohibits a member from knowingly misrepresenting facts or subordinating his or her judgment when performing professional services. If the member concludes that the financial statements could be materially misstated, he or she should discuss the concerns with the appropriate higher level(s) of management and consider documenting his or her understanding of the facts, the accounting principles involved, the application of the accounting principles to the facts and the parties with whom the matters were discussed. If the member then concludes that appropriate action was not taken, that member may wish to consider his or her continuing relationship with the employer and any responsibility to communicate the matter to third parties, including the employer’s external accountants. The member also may wish to consult with legal counsel.

4. A member in industry is assigned by his or her employer to facilitate a transaction between two entities. During this process, the member creates false and misleading documents that are presented to one of the entities. Is the member in violation of the AICPA code?

Yes. Rule 102 requires that, in the performance of any professional service, a member shall not knowingly misrepresent facts.
5. A member employed as the controller of a company is directed by its president to record a sale material to the company’s financial statements. The member records the sale without obtaining the necessary documents to determine whether the transaction is in compliance with GAAP. It is later discovered that the sale occurred after the reporting period and resulted in materially overstated earnings in the financial statements. Is the member in violation of the AICPA code?

Yes. Under Interpretation 501-4, if the member, by virtue of his or her negligence, makes, or permits or directs another to make, materially false or misleading entries in the financial statements or records of an entity, he or she shall be considered to have committed an act discreditable to the profession.

6. A member who is a CFO has been asked to sign a management representation letter stating that the company’s financial statements are in conformity with GAAP when he or she is aware of a material departure from an established accounting principle. Should the member sign the letter?

No. Rule 203 provides that a member shall not state affirmatively that the financial statements are in conformity with GAAP if such financial statements contain any departure from an established accounting principle that has a material effect on them. In addition, Rule 102 requires that in the performance of any professional service a member shall not knowingly misrepresent facts.

STANDARDS OF ETHICAL CONDUCT FOR MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTANTS

Management accountants have an obligation to the organizations they serve, their profession, the public and themselves to maintain the highest standards of ethical conduct. In recognition of this obligation, the Institute of Management Accountants has promulgated the following standards of ethical conduct for management accountants. Adherence to these standards is integral to achieving the Objectives of Management Accounting. Management accountants shall not commit acts contrary to these standards nor shall they condone the commission of such acts by others within their organizations.

Members shall abide by the more stringent code of ethical conduct, whether that is the standards widely practiced in their country or IMA’s Standards of Ethical Conduct. In no case will a member conduct herself or himself by any standard that is not at least equivalent to the standards identified for members in IMA’s Standards of Ethical Conduct.

COMPETENCE

Management accountants have a responsibility to:

- Maintain an appropriate level of professional competence by ongoing development of their knowledge and skills

1 Reprinted with permission of the Institute of Management Accountants.
• Perform their professional duties in accordance with relevant laws, regulations, and technical standards

• Prepare complete and clear reports and recommendations after appropriate analyses of relevant and reliable information.

CONFIDENTIALITY

Management accountants have a responsibility to:

• Refrain from disclosing confidential information acquired in the course of their work except when authorized, unless legally obligated to do so

• Inform subordinates as appropriate regarding the confidentiality of information acquired in the course of their work and monitor their activities to assure the maintenance of that confidentiality

• Refrain from using or appearing to use confidential information acquired in the course of their work for unethical or illegal advantage either personally or through third parties.

INTEGRITY

Management accountants have a responsibility to:

• Avoid actual or apparent conflicts of interest and advise all appropriate parties of any potential conflict

• Refrain from engaging in any activity that would prejudice their ability to carry out their duties ethically

• Refuse any gift, favor, or hospitality that would influence or would appear to influence their actions

• Refrain from either actively or passively subverting the attainment of the organization's legitimate and ethical objectives

• Recognize and communicate professional limitations or other constraints that would preclude responsible judgment or successful performance of an activity

• Communicate unfavorable as well as favorable information and professional judgments or opinions

• Refrain from engaging in or supporting any activity that would discredit the profession.
OBJECTIVITY

Management accountants have a responsibility to:

- Communicate information fairly and objectively

- Disclose fully all relevant information that could reasonably be expected to influence an intended user’s understanding of the reports, comments and recommendations presented.

RESOLUTION OF ETHICAL CONFLICT

In applying the standards of ethical conduct, management accountants may encounter problems in identifying unethical behavior or in resolving an ethical conflict. When faced with significant ethical issues, management accountants should follow the established policies of the organization bearing on the resolution of such conflict. If these policies do not resolve the ethical conflict, management accountants should consider the following courses of action.

- Discuss such problems with the immediate superior except when it appears that the superior is involved, in which case the problem should be presented initially to the next higher managerial level. If satisfactory resolution cannot be achieved when the problem is initially presented, submit the issues to the next higher managerial level.

- If the immediate superior is the chief executive officer, or equivalent, the acceptable reviewing authority may be a group such as the audit committee, executive committee, board of directors, board of trustees, or owners. Contact with levels above the immediate superior should be initiated only with the superior’s knowledge, assuming the superior is not involved.

- Clarify relevant concepts by confidential discussion with an objective adviser to obtain an understanding of possible courses of action.

- If the ethical conflict still exists after exhausting all levels of internal review, the management accountant may have no other recourse on significant matters than to resign from the organization and to submit an informative memorandum to an appropriate representative of the organization.

After resignation, depending on the nature of the ethical conflict, it may also be appropriate to notify other parties.

The author believes that all CPAs in industry should adhere to both the AICPA and IMA guidelines regardless of membership.
Case Study

Integrity and Objectivity

CPA, Director of Finance for a publicly owned company, made journal entries to adjust second and third quarter 200X financial statements according to a model developed and used by the company. When CPA made the adjustments to the second and third quarter financial statements, CPA did not report to senior management or to the external auditors that the adjustments could result in a misstatement of the financial statements. CPA reported the unsupported journal entries on the fourth quarter financial statements.

CPA made journal entries that were not in compliance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles. CPA did not discharge the duty owed to the general public when CPA allowed incorrect second and third quarter financial statements to be issued.

FOREIGN CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT

Congress enacted the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act in 1977. This Act was passed because of disclosures by the Office of the Watergate Special Prosecutor and the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) of the use of U.S. corporate funds for domestic political contributions and for the bribery of foreign government officials. Some of these payments were clearly illegal and others questionable, while some payments appeared to have been made by avoiding internal control systems. To prevent these problems from occurring in the future, the Act requires a publicly traded company (it does not apply to privately held companies) to keep in reasonable detail "books, records and accounts” that accurately and fairly reflect its transactions and disposition of assets, and maintain an adequate system of internal controls. The control system must have the following attributes:

- Transactions must occur under the authorization of management
- Transactions must be properly recorded
- There must be reasonable controls over access to assets
- There must be periodic reconciliations of recorded to actual assets, with an investigation of any differences.

This Act is particularly applicable to multinational organizations, so the controllers of these organizations must be aware of it and its ramifications for enhanced control systems. To be in compliance with the Act, a controller should be particularly mindful of the adequacy of company control systems, as well as of subtle changes in financial results that may indicate the presence of control problems.

The penalties for violation of this act are fines of up to $2,000,000 for any concern convicted of the violation. In addition, individuals involved in such illegal payoffs are subject personally to fines up to $100,000 and prison for up to five years.

INTERNAL AUDITORS

The Institute of Internal Auditors has issued an exposure draft to revise its code of ethics. It would require compliance by all internal auditors not just Institute members.
In a sign of a widening crackdown, the Securities and Exchange Commission said it plans to work more closely with criminal prosecutors to attack corporate accounting fraud.

The high-level warning came from Richard H. Walker, the SEC’s director of enforcement, who said in a speech that the agency continues “to see an unacceptably high number of busted audits.”

To reduce corporate bookkeeping frauds, Mr. Walker said, the agency plans to work more closely with U.S. attorneys’ offices across the country to pursue criminal charges against executives involved in such fraudulent behavior. The SEC’s top enforcement official said an “increasing number of our cases are also accompanied by criminal charges,” and cited the success of a so-called “SWAT-team approach” the agency executed in conjunction with U.S. attorneys in New York in a fraud case against executives of Livent, Inc., the Canadian producer of Broadway shows.

“Cook the books, and you will go directly to jail without passing Go,” Mr. Walker said.

MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTANTS SHOULD HEED THE ABOVE WARNING

One of the most common schemes is the bill-and-hold sales transaction. While it’s not necessarily a GAAP violation, it’s often associated with financial frauds and calls for deeper investigation. The SEC says that all of the following conditions must be met for revenue recognition to be appropriate:

- The risks of ownership must have passed to the buyer.
- The customer must have a commitment to purchase, preferably in writing.
- The buyer must request the bill-and-sale transaction and substantiate a business purpose for it.
- A fixed delivery date must exist.
- The seller must not retain any significant specific performance obligations.
- The goods must be complete and ready for shipment and not subject to being used to fill other orders.

THE ENRON CASE

Enron had one of the most pervasive impacts on the accounting profession and the investment community since the Depression. The largest bankruptcy in American history has called into question the effectiveness of auditors and the integrity of the accounting profession, as a whole. In the post-Enron era, dramatic reforms have been passed, several of which have impacted the ability of the accountants to continue as a self-regulated profession.
Other players in the Enron saga, including financial analysts and lawyers, will also feel the effects of Enron’s demise, which will likely result in sweeping reforms in independence, conflict of interest rules and liability limits.

It will take years to sort out the criminal and tort litigation that is a byproduct of Enron’s failure. On a short-term basis, Congress is quickly forcing dramatic changes as the public watches and demands accountability for the billions lost by Enron shareholders and creditors. Some of the changes that Congress will make will be positive and constructive, while others will be window dressing. Oddly enough, the changes by Congress will bring Washington’s hypocrisy to the forefront. Many of the same Congressmen who now demand changes to the accounting rules were lobbied to oppose those same changes when proposed by the FASB years ago.

SARBANES-OXLEY CORPORATE RESPONSIBILITY ACT OF 2002

Title III of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act deals with making corporations more responsible for the financial statements they issue. Some of the major changes affect audit committees and are designed to make them more independent. In particular, the Act vests the audit committee of an issuer with responsibility for the appointment, compensation, and oversight of any registered public accounting firm employed to perform audit services. It also requires committee members to be a member of the board of directors of the issuer, and to be otherwise independent.

Title IX of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act amends Federal criminal law to increase criminal penalties for: 1) conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud the United States, including its agencies; and 2) mail and wire fraud.

IMA ETHICS HOTLINE NOW OPEN TO ALL FINANCIAL PROFESSIONALS

In response to the need for businesses to maintain the highest ethical standards, the Institute of Management Accountants announced that financial professionals can now get free, confidential guidance on ethical issues through the IMA Ethics Hotline.

Since Enron and other corporate accounting scandals, ethics programs and hotlines are fast becoming an unofficial requirement for businesses. Confidential hotlines, in particular, are gaining popularity to protect an employee from being labeled a “whistleblower.”

Financial professionals can call the hotline toll-free at 1-800-638-4427 x 1662, or send their inquiry via e-mail to ethics@imanet.org. The IMA does not record phone numbers or e-mail addresses. Those who contact the hotline can be provided with a numerical code for identification, to maintain confidentiality.

FEDERAL SENTENCING GUIDELINES

Under the newly revised sentencing guidelines, there are five things you can do to change the culture of your company and reduce your firm’s potential exposure.

1. Create a formal, written ethics policy.
2. Require managers to monitor ethics compliance.
3. Screen potential employees carefully before hiring.
4. Develop incentives to promote compliance.
5. Encourage employees to speak up when they encounter problems.

Companies that embrace the five items above will receive lighter sentences in the event they are convicted of wrongdoing.

STOCK OPTION BACKDATING

In 2006 and 2007, there was a flurry of controversy over stock option backdating. This controversy is the direct result of an ethical breakdown in corporate America. While it may take years to sort out the full impact of this dubious practice, here are a few of the possible impacts excerpted from articles written by the experts in employee ownership at the National Center for Employee Ownership (www.NCEO.org):

1. Shareholder Litigation: Backdating will be a field day for securities lawyers for a number of reasons. If a company said it was issuing options at fair market value, but really didn't, shareholders could sue because they never approved such a plan. Furthermore, IRS rules make shareholder approval a condition of tax-qualified incentive stock option plans.

2. SEC Enforcement: Lawyers still haven’t quite sorted out all the violations that could be involved with backdating. If an executive got options timed just before the release of data that would affect the stock price, that’s potentially insider trading. If the options were granted in a way not in accordance with the plan, that could mean that proper disclosures from the executive to the SEC had not been made. If the two-day rule for reporting grants was effectively violated (because the grant date was pushed back more than two days over what the company actually claimed it was), then the securities laws are violated again.

3. Corporate Taxes: It’s not entirely clear how the new rules on the taxation of deferred compensation will apply to backdated options issued before the effective date of the new deferred compensation rules under Internal Revenue Code Section 409A, which says that certain kinds of deferred compensation will be heavily taxed unless the recipient specified well in advance when the award would be paid. Options generally do not require such an advance election (you can exercise whenever you like once they are vested until they expire; that’s why they are so appealing). Option grants at fair market value are not covered by Section 409A, but discounted options are. More clear is that if the options were incentive stock options, then the backdating would disqualify the option as an incentive option, and the executive would owe big-time back taxes on the exercised award, even if the stock had not yet been sold. If the exercise date is bogus, that means the company has underwithheld taxes on the exercise, and that means it owes the government, with penalties and interest. Failure to withhold payroll taxes on non-qualified options can result in the denial of the corporate tax deduction for the compensation element of the stock option award. This alone could result in hundreds of millions of dollars in unpaid corporate income taxes.
4. Financial Statements and Restatements: Rules for recording the impact of options expenses have changed, but under both the old rules and the new rules, pretending the awards were granted at a price they were not requires companies to go back and restate earnings.

5. Excess Compensation: Companies can take tax deductions for compensation to top executives over $1 million only if it is performance-based. Backdated options are not, so there may well be tax penalties.

6. The Alternative Minimum Tax: Employees who have incentive stock options do not have to pay any tax when they exercise the option, only when they sell the stock (provided they hold the shares for one year after exercise and two years after grant). At sale, they only would pay capital gains taxes, but they may be subject to the alternative minimum tax (AMT) requiring them to count the spread on the option at exercise as a “preference” item. Many employees (especially executives) would have held on to the stock after exercise for at least a year and paid the AMT. But backdated options cannot be incentive options because incentive options must be issued at fair market value. So, that means they now owe regular tax on the exercise of the option from years ago.

7. Changes to Option Programs: This scandal could force companies to reduce or eliminate the granting of options. Why risk the hassle? Just cancel the plan.

GREED

Excessive executive compensation seems to be an issue that just won’t go away. The theory seems to be that a good CEO is worth any price a company will pay. Any gain a company makes is assumed to be the sole result of the extraordinary wisdom of this one very special person, not the collective efforts of hundreds or thousands of employees. Despite all the editorials, all the accounting rule changes, and all the new laws, nothing much seems to change except the particular manner in which so many executives get overpaid. Chances are this particular practice will now go away, but another one will surface all too soon. The question is – How will you react to the next scandal? Will you have the courage to question and stop the practice? Check out the latest at www.NCEO.org.
CHAPTER 5 – REVIEW QUESTIONS

The following questions are designed to ensure that you have a complete understanding of the information presented in the chapter. They do not need to be submitted in order to receive CPE credit. They are included as an additional tool to enhance your learning experience.

We recommend that you answer each review question and then compare your response to the suggested solution before answering the final exam questions related to this chapter.

1. Smith is a member of the AICPA and is the controller for a large wholesale distribution company. In the current year, sales were down 10% from the prior year. The Vice President of Finance has instructed Smith to “keep the books open” for a few days in January so that some anticipated large orders could be booked in the prior year. What should Smith do:

   a) determine if “leaving the books open” for a few days is an acceptable alternative accounting principle
   b) communicate the disagreement to the appropriate higher level of management
   c) if higher level management fails to take action, Smith should consider quitting employment
   d) all of the above

2. Which of the following is an attribute of the internal control system required by the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act:

   a) transactions must occur under the authorization of management
   b) transactions must be properly recorded
   c) there must be reasonable controls over access to assets
   d) all of the above
CHAPTER 5 – SOLUTIONS AND SUGGESTED RESPONSES

1. A: Incorrect. He must do more than simply analyze the circumstances.

   D: Correct. A CPA should take all of the above steps.

   (See Interpretation 102-4 in the course material.)

2. A: Incorrect. Authorization is just one of the requirements.

   C: Incorrect. Having reasonable controls over access to assets is just one of the requirements.

   D: Correct. All of the above are required. In addition, there must be a periodic reconciliation of recorded to actual assets with an investigation of any differences.

<td>Alternative Practice Structures (APS)</td>
<td>A nontraditional structure for the practice of public accounting in which a traditional CPA firm engaged in auditing and other attestation services might be closely aligned with another organization, public or private, that performs other professional services (e.g., tax and consulting).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA)</td>
<td>The national professional organization for all certified public accountants (CPAs).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Client's records</td>
<td>Any accounting or other records belonging to the client that were given to the member by, or on behalf of, the client.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Close relative</td>
<td>Close relatives are the member's nondependent children (including grandchildren and stepchildren), brothers and sisters, grandparents, parents, and parents-in-law. Spouses of any of the above are also close relatives. The SEC definition of close relatives expands the above to include a spouse's brothers and sisters and their spouses.</td>

| Disqualifying services | Term used to refer to the following services, which when performed for a client prohibit the member from accepting a contingent fee or commission:
  a. An audit or a review of a financial statement.
  b. An examination of prospective financial information.
  c. A compilation of a financial statement expected to be used by third parties except when the compilation report discloses a lack of independence. |
| Ethics Rulings | Part of the Code of Professional Conduct. Rulings summarize the application of rules and interpretations to a particular set of factual circumstances. |
| Firm | A form of organization permitted by state law or regulation whose characteristics conform to resolutions of Council that is engaged in the practice of public accounting, including the individual owners thereof. |
| Former practitioner | A proprietor, partner, shareholder or equivalent of a firm, who leaves by resignation, termination, retirement, or sale of all or part of the practice. |
| Holding out as a CPA | Includes any action initiated by a member, whether or not in public practice, that informs others of his or her status as a CPA. |
| Independence in appearance | If there are circumstances that a reasonable person might believe are likely to impair independence, the CPA is not independent in appearance. To be recognized as independent, the auditor must be free from any obligation to or interest in the client, its management, or its owners. |
| Independence in fact | To be independent in fact (mental independence), the CPA must have integrity and objectivity. If there is evidence that independence is actually lacking, the auditor is not independent in fact. |
| Indirect financial interest | An indirect financial interest is created when a member invests in a nonclient entity that has a financial interest in a client. |
| Integrity | An element of character fundamental to professional recognition. It is the quality from which public trust derives and the benchmark against which a member must ultimately test all decisions. |

<tr>
<td>Internal audit outsourcing</td>
<td>Internal audit outsourcing involves performing audit procedures that are generally of the type considered to be extensions of audit scope applied in the audit of financial statements. Examples of such procedures might include confirming receivables, analyzing fluctuations in account balances, and testing and evaluating the effectiveness of controls.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Interpretations of rules of conduct</td>
<td>Part of the Code of Professional Conduct. Interpretations are pronouncements issued by the AICPA’s Division of Professional Ethics to provide guidelines concerning the scope and application of the rules of conduct.</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joint Ethics Enforcement Program (JEEP)</td>
<td>The AICPA and most state societies cooperate in the Joint Ethics Enforcement Program (JEEP) in bringing enforcement actions against their members.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Member</td>
<td>In its broadest sense, “member” is a term used to describe a member, associate member, or international associate of the AICPA. All members must adhere to the AICPA’s Code of Professional Conduct. For the purposes of applying the independence rules, the term “member” identifies the people in a CPA firm and their spouses, dependents, and cohabitants who are subject to the independence requirements.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Multidisciplinary practices (MDP)</td>
<td>Arrangements in which CPAs share fees with attorneys or other professionals.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA)</td>
<td>A voluntary organization composed of the state boards of accountancy. It promotes communication, coordination, and uniformity among state boards.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Objectivity</td>
<td>The principle of objectivity imposes the obligation to be impartial, intellectually honest, and free of conflicts of interest. Objectivity is a state of mind, a quality that lends value to a member’s services.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Period of professional engagement</td>
<td>The period of engagement starts when the member begins the service requiring independence and ends upon termination of the relationship (by the member or the client) or, if later, when the report is issued. The period does not stop when the report is issued and restart with the beginning of the next engagement. The period of engagement typically covers many periods.</td>
</tr>
<td>Practice of public accounting</td>
<td>According to the Code of Professional Conduct, the practice of public accounting consists of the performance for a client, by a member or a member’s firm, while holding out as CPAs, of the professional services of accounting, tax, personal financial planning, litigation support services, and those professional services for which standards are promulgated by bodies designated by Council, such as Statements of Financial Accounting Standards, Statements on Auditing Standards, Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services, Statements on Standards for Consulting Services, Statements on Standards for Tax Services, Statements of Governmental Accounting Standards, and Statements on Standards for Attestation Engagements. However, a member or member’s firm, while holding out as CPAs, is not considered to be in the practice of public accounting if the member or the member’s firm does not perform, for any client, any of the professional services described in the preceding paragraph.</td>
